AN EXCITING DAY'S WORK

Which Furnished a Number of Sensational Scenes.

AN EFFORT TO INSTRUCT FAILS

and So Does An Effort to Enforce a Unit Rule.

CLEVELANDITES JUMPED ON

By Seaborn Wright and W. Y. Atkinson

AND ROUNDLY SCORED BY THEM

The Cleveland Men Elect Their Delegates at Large, but the Majority are Out-Spoken Against Cleveland.

Uninstructed!

Georgia's voice is heard. The Empire State of the South has spoken for democracy and tariff reform and financial relief-for the demands of the people.

Has spoken in compliment to the admin istration of Grover Cleveland, but spoken at the same time for an uninstructed, unpledged and untrammeled delegation to Chicago. And that delegation is made up of men a majority of whom have been pronounced in their belief that it would be party suicide to make Grover Cleveland the nominee.

Not soon will yesterday's convention be forgotten by those who participated in its excitement, its debates, its filibuster-

All day long the state capitol was a scene of bustle and confusion. From mountains to sea Georgia had emptied her politicians upon those marble floors and the towering dome echoed with the from morning till late last night.

The most notable feature of the make up of the convention was the conspicuous absence of as many farmer delegates as are usually to be found at these conven-most amusing item about the operation of the convention was the spirit of "rule or ruin" that characterized the efforts of a few well known arrogant politicians. And certain it is that the most triumphant victory of the entire day was that achieved by Hon. Seaborn Wright, of Rome, and Hon, W. Y. Atkinson, of Coweta, when, with the fire of honest loyalty and rightful indignation in their eyes, sprang upon their desks with eloquence matchless and true, in the face of a Cleveland majority, whipped out the aforesaid political wire pullers in their attempt to break a life-long custom and rob the congressional districts of their gates to the national convention.

With no right save might this attempt to snatch away from the districts their right of sovereignty was made; but that effort failed ignominiously, and before the reaction had fully begun to be felt, Mr. Hoke Smith, who was urging such an iniquitous policy so vigorously, was made to feel very much disposed to remark that he was sorry he spoke, so sig-

Hon. Seaborn Wright, the silvertongued orator and gifted young statesman from Rome, led the fight on this attempt at dictatorship, and so vigorous was his defense of the districts thus attacked-because they had chosen to put out anti-Cleveland men-and so flagrant was the attempt to throttle them that Hon. Hon. W. Y. Atkinson, chairman of the state democratic committee, who was not a delegate to the convention and had no right to be heard, went out and procured a proxy from a departing delegate, and in less time than it takes to tell it, rushed back, leaped upon a desk and poured a volley of hot shot into the leading advocate of such an unheard-of young Roman, and before he had finished Mr. Smith and the rest were more than ready to withdraw all they had said. The fight was whipped.

for this great service to the democrats of Georgia. He was quick to speak out against such dictatorship and warned the leaders to take the consequences if they proceeded to the usurpation of the districts' right to elect just because they happened to have a slight majority in the convention hall.

Mr. Atkinson's rally and assistance in warding off such an attempt before it was put to a vote likewise won golden opinions for him among all loyal democrats in Georgia.

To these men is due largely the result of the convention that sends to Chicago an untrammeled delegation—a delegation with no restrictions, no instructions, and with a majority of the delegates-men who have been pronounced in their opposition to the nomination of Grover Cleveland.

THE DAY'S WORK.

Record of the Morning and Afternoon!

of the Convention.

Hon. W. Y. Atkinson, chairman of the tate democratic executive committee, state democratic executive committee, celled the convention to order at precisely 12 o'clock, and opened the business of the day with a speech, which commanded close attention, and was frequently applauded. He began by saying: "Members of the democratic convention, of the state of Georgie 1 need nothing more to assure me that the people of Georgie state of Georgia: I need nothing more to assure me that the people of Georgia are loyal to the principles of the party of Jefferson and Jackson than to look upon their representation here today. Two years ago the people, not of Georgia alone, but of the American union, passed upon the issues between the two great political parties, and, by an overwhelming majority, declared that the republican party should pass from power, and that the administration of the affairs of this great republic should be entrusted to the democratic party of America, waiting only the coming election in order that this dictate might be carried out. We have, of late, while waiting, had it heralded abroad through Georgia, and throughout this union, that the people of Georgia were ready to desert the grand old party and to follow after, not the teachings of the wise men and women from the west. (Applause and laughter.) With this flaunted in the faces of the democracy of Georgia, the committee to whom you had entrusted your own interests, met in this capital and called upon the true democrats of Georgia to rally to all was answered, from the mountains to the seacoast, by a true and loyal democracy that has aroused an enthusiasm such as has not been known in Georgia in twenty years. (Applause. Returning, we went to work with the true, the pure and enthusiastic and earnest democrats of Georgia, and we have demoralized the enemy, and are driving them from the field."

He said that much depended upon the action of this ponvention. "If you are conciliatory, if you are fair and conservative." he said, "it will bear good fruit in this contest. Let me entreat you, then, to be harmonious, to be conciliatory, and to be wise. In the action of this convention and the action of the national convention and the action of the people." Said Chairman Atkinson, "but I do know, and I proclaim it here, that the list of the people." Said to assure me that the people of Georgia are loyal to the principles of the party of Jefferson and Jackson than to look up-

"Let us look, then, to the national convention to give us a man who will represent the principles of the party, and old Georgia will rally to the polls and give him an overwhelming, old-time, democratic majority; and in this mission we will triumph as he will triumph in Georgia, because, as I believe in God, I believe that the cause of the right will triumph, and I believe that the cause of the round or the common people of America, from ocean to ocean. (Applause.) With such a platform and such a leader, the democratic host will marshal every force and drive from the field their old enemy, the republicans, and will bury the third party in a grave so deep that it will never know the dawn or the sunshine or the morning of resurrection. (Applause.) I declare this convention now ready to proceed to the temporary organization." temporary organization.

The Contest Over the Chairmanship. As Chairman Atkinson's speech ended, Mr. Render, of Meriwether, was on his feet, calling: "Mr. Chairman!" "The gentleman from Meriwether," said the chair.

And the contest for the chairmanship was on.

Mr. Render immediately proceeded to nominate Colonel J. W. Robertson. "Happy am I today to greet the democracy of Georgia on this auspicious occasion," said the speaker. "I congratulate you that on this occasion there is considerable occasion for good. (Cheers.) Mr Chairman, fifteen years ago, if you will pardon the personal allusion. I was living in obscurity in the good old county of Meriwether, and my people called me to the deliberations of the constitutional convention of 1877. There I had the pleasure and the honor to associate with some of the brighest intellects of Georgia, among them the gallant Toombs, the sainted Charles J. Jenkins and among them a gentleman, who, though comparatively unknown to the larger masses of the people of Georgia, yet I say, with respect for the dead past, that for genuine oratory and statesmanship, he is the equal of the dead past and a shining example for the young democracy of the future

"A few-weeks age when the unity and the harmony of the democratic party were jeopardized, his eloquent voice was heard to echo in every valley in that portion of the state in behalf of genuine democracy. Mr. Chairman, besides that, he is an advocate of the great tar fr reform upon which you have so eloquertly spoken. Sir, and fellow democrats, he sprang from the common masses of the people. When the toesin of war was sounded, he shouldered his musket and volunteered his services in the county of Cobb, and where the war was over he came back a pauper and was forced to labor, and upon his watch today he wears the first quarter of a dollar which he secured by hard licks with honest hands. He is a man of the people a grand and true specimen of Georgia manhood, not only in physical manhood, but in genuine brain power; and, Mr. Chairman and fellow democrats, as an humble representative of the democraty of western Georgia, tate gallant and true man, John W. Roberson, of the county of Habersham."

This was greeted by great applause.

Mr. Barrow Nominated.

In the midst of the applause elicited by Robertson's name, Mr. Clements, of Gwinnett, rose to nominate Hon. Pope Barrow.

In the midst of the applause elicited by Robertson's name, Mr. Clements, of Gwinnett, rose to nominate Hon. Pope Barrow, He said:

"Mr. Chairman: As a member of this convention I have the pleasure to nominate for temporary chairman a man who was one among the first to preach tariff reform from the stump to the farmers in the grand old state of Georgia. That gentleman is the Hon. Pope Barrow, of the county of Clarke." (Applause.)

Beconding the Nominations.

Hon. Reuber Jones, of Baker, seconded the nomination of Mr. Barrow.

Hon. Tom Grimes, of Columbus, rose to second the nomination of Colonel Robertson. He said:

"I rise for the purpose of seconding the nomination of the gentleman who has been put before this body by my friend from Meriwether, Mr. Robertson, of the county of Habersham," he said, "I will not go outside of the order of things when I tell you, in so far as I have the pleasure to represent him that he is in favor of measures and not men. (Applause.) Should it be your pleasure to put him in the chair as presiding officer of this body, his rulings without unjust criticism upon my frend from Athens, would be clear, impartial, and in favor of the democracy of Georgia. (Applause.) So far as I know, Mr. Chairman, he is in favor of the man that will take the flag in his hand in November, and with the democracy of this union he will support the man who wants to lead us to victory. We are all democrats, and I dare say, because we are in the house of our friends, no matter who the standard bearer will be in November, we will all keep together and follow wherever the leader of democracy dares to carry us. If by any unfortunate chance our banner should be lowered, whoever we send to the Chicago convention can come back to us and say, with a clear conscience, looking his democratic friends in the face, that, though the battle was lost, I would rather be a mourner at the funeral of right than to be arch-fiend in the carnival of night. Again, I take great pleasure in seconding the nomination of Mr. Robertson fr

Financial Reform.

what more elaborately than Mr. Clements.

Financial Reform.

In a speech ringing with eloquence and sound thought, Hon. Martin V. Calvin, of Richmond, seconded the nomination of Hon. James W. Robertson, of Habersham.

"I have listened," said he, "to the speech of our chairman with very great interest. And, with due respect to our honorable chairman, I think he unwittingly omitted half that he might have said. I second the nomination of Mr. Robertson because he represents the great principle of tariff reform. But, more than that, because he represents that principle which cannot be disregarded by this convention, nor by any other national convention—the great principle of financial relief."

Terrific and long-continued applause greeted this utterance, and the wildest scene ensued. Hats, handkerchiefs, papers and fans were thrown into the air, and it was several minutes before Mr. Calvin could continue.

"These two go hand in hand," Mr. Calvin went on, when quiet was restored. "It has been said that measures are more important than men, and no man can shut his eyes to the fact that there is no such thing as a single issue in this campaign."

Mr. Calvin sat down amid thunderous applause from all parts of the hall, and from the galleries.

Fulton's Two Delegations.

At the close of Mr. Calvin's speech, Mr. Clark Howell addressed the chairman from tion.

Quick as lightning, Hon. James F.

O'Neill jumped up and made the same point in the case of Mr. Alexander.

Chairman Atkinson recognized Air. Howell,

"I simply arise," said Mr. Howell, "to move that the clerk now proceed to call the roll for the election of a chairman. The nominations have been numerously seconded."

"The chair will not now pass upon the question of. which of the two delegations claiming to represent Fulton in this convention," said Chairman Atkinson, "is the proper one. That will be settled after the vote is taken upon prima facie evidence."

Colonel Livingston, who headed the Newton delegation, was recognized. "I want to suggest," said he, "that when the call of counties is made that if there are any contesting delegations that they be passed over and afterwards referred to the proper committee."

The chairman ruled that he had no authority to refer contests to any committee. When a county from which there is a contest is called, the delegations would send their testimonials to the chairman. The temporary chairman, he said, would send their testimonials to the chairman. The temporary chairman he said, would appoint a committee on credentials, to which would be referred all contests.

The vote for Roblinson stood: Appling, 11-2; Baldwin, 4-5; Bartow, 11-2; Burke, 6; Butts, 1-2; Cherokee, 2; Clayton, 1-23; Cobb, 4; Cowets, 1; Dawson, 1; Decatur, 1; Dooly, 4; Ebbert, 2; Fannin, 2; Floyd, 6; Forsyth, 2; Franklin, 1; Glimer, 2; Gordon, 1-2; Greene, 4; Gwinnett, 2; Habersham, 2; Hall, 4; Haarcock, 4; Haraison, 1; Harris, 4; Hart, 1.1-4; Heard, 2; Houston, 2-4; Fryin, 2; Jackson, 2; Melatosh, 1; Meriwether, 2; Murray, 2; Miscogee, 5-12; Newton, 2; Oglethorpe, 4; Flabura, 2; Randolph, 1; Richer, 2; Taylor, 2; Terfair, 1; Terrell, 1; Towns, 2; Troup, 2; Island, 2; Randolph, 1; Richer, 2; Sanding, 1-8; Sunter, 4; Talbot, 1; Taliaferro, 2; Taylor, 2; Terfair, 1; Terrell, 1; Towns, 2; Troup, 2; Linon, 1; White, 1; Whitfield, 1-2; Barker, 2; Baldwin, 1-5; Banks, 2; Bartow, 2; Clarke, 2; Clay, 1; Clayton, 1; Greene, 2; Clayton, 1; Greene, 2; Clayton, 1; Greene, 2; Clayton, 2; Greene, 2; Clayton, 2; Greene, 2; C from Fulton whose seats were not contested could vote.

Mr. Smith then cast the three votes of the uncontested half of the delegation for Barrow for chairman.

Two gentlemen on opposite sides of the hall arose to vote for Jefferson county. One gentleman cast three votes.

Mr. Cain, of Jefferson, said he was a delegate, and, up to the time of the call, he did not know that there was a delegate from Jefferson besides himself on the floor.

The first gentleman arose and said he represented three-fourths of the people of the county of Jefferson, in voting as he did.

did.

The chairman suggested that the delegation get together and agree upon how vote should be cast, which was done. They Voted in Broken Numbers.

Much merriment was caused during the monotonous roll call by votes being cast for the respective candidates in fractions.

Mr. Boykin Wright voted the Richmond delegation, for Barrow, 11-11; for Robertson, 410-11.

Colonel Bob Holtzclaw, of Houston, divided his up in still worse manner, and the recording clerk came near going crazy.

"Who made that calculation?" inquired Hon. Mark Hardin.

"Who made that calculation: Inquite Hon. Mark Hardin.
"I did, sir." said Mr. Holtzclaw, proudly.
"Nobody but Bob Holtzclaw could have done it," said Mr. Hardin, as he proceeded with the call.

He Held a Proxy.

He Held a Proxy.

Mr. I. B. Corn held a proxy from Towns county, and cast two votes for Robertson for chairman.

Mr. Rucker, of Milton, made the point of order that Mr. Corn did not live in Towns—he was a resident of Atlanta.

Mr. Smith, of Fulton, said a decision of the state executive committee forbade proxies being held by persons not residents of the county from which the proxy was held.

held.
Mr. Corn stated that he resided in Towns county, and was allowed to vote.

The call continued, and Ware county cast the deciding vote, amid great applause by the supporters of Mr. Barrow. When the deciding vote was cast, Mr. Robertson had 131 votes.

by the supporters of Mr. Barrow. When the deciding vote was cast, Mr. Robertson had 131 votes.

At the conclusion of the call, the delegations from Fulton and Clay stated that they had decided not to embarrass the chairman by insisting upon his passing upon which had the right to vote, but would allow the question to be settled by the credentials committee.

When the result was announced, Hon. J. W. Robertson arose in his place and moved that the selection of Hon. Pope Barrow as temporary chairman be made unanimous. This was concurred in.

Chairman Atkinson appointed Hon. J. W. Robertson, Hon. W. L. Render and Hon. Hoke Smith as a committee to escort Hon. Pope Barrow to the chair.

As Hon. Pope Barrow to the chair.

As Hon. Pope Barrow reached the speaker's stand Colonel Robertson advancing from the top step to the desk stretched out his hand to the convention and said with dignity:

"I am a stranger to a part of you, but I thank God that all Georgians are neighbors and all democrats are friends. (Applause.) I have the bonor to present to rou as your presiding officer a man of more ability in the chair than myself, but not a better democrat, Hon. Pope Barrow, of Clarke county."

Mr. Barrow was received with great enthusiasm and acknowledged the honor of his election in a speech which was frequently applauded. It was an argument for tariff reform and Grover Cleveland. He said:

Hon. Pope Barrow's Speech.

As Hon. Pope Barrow's Speech.

As Hon. Pope Barrow's poper.

As Hone of Georgia, descended from a father and a mother who were born upon her soil, from a grandfather and a grandmother who were also born upon her soil, and with five generations of my ancestors sleeping beneath her sod, I feel that I certainly am at home in Georgia. (Applause.) I am thankful to say that when I look around me at this moment I see few strange faces, and as I turn my eyes from right to left over this vast concourse of honest Georgians and realize that we are standing in the capitol of that dear old state. I feel like the Scottish ch

Selecting Clerks.

Selecting Clerks.

Hon. W. H. Fleming, of Richmond, moved that Hon. W. A. Harris, of Worth, Hon. Mark Hardin, of Bartow, and Hon. Henry H. Cabaniss, of Fulton, be made clerks to the convention. These gentlemen were unanimously elected.

Hon. Emmet Womack, of Newton, moved that Hon. Pope Barrow be made permanent chairman of the convention. He put the question himself.

"As many as favor the question you have just heard so elegantly put," said he, "will say "sye."

The motion was carried.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Moses, of Coweta, brother of the congressman, moved that a committee on credentials, consisting of one from each congressional district, be appointed.

This motion was carried.

Hon. L. F. Garrard introduced a resolution, which went to the committee on platform and resolutions, and was afterwards adopted as the platform of the convention, with some slight changes.

The Committee on Platform.

Hon. L. F. Garrard, of Muscogee, then offered a resolution providing that a committee, consisting of one member from each congressional district, be appointed by the chairman of the convention, to be known as the "committee on platform and resolutions," to whom shall be referred all resolutions submitted to the convention.

This resolution was adopted.

He Gets Hungry. He Gets Hungry.

Trox Bankston moved to adjourn, from his position in the rear of the hall. He was hungry, and he thought he could do better to get a fresh swing at things after being refreshed by dinner.

The motion was voted-down.

Trox struck out for the door, bound to have dinner, jumping over chairs and delegates in his eagerness to get out.

The Committee on Credentials.

The Committee on Credentials.

The Committee on Credentials.

The chairman then announced the following names as members of the committee on credentials:

First District—G. A. Mercer, of Chat-Second District—R. F. Hobbs, of Dougherty.
Third District—C. B. Hudson, of Schley.
Fourth District—Farmer, of Coweta.
Fifth District—C. M. Candler, of De-

Sixth District-Seaton Grantland, of Spalding.
Seventh District-Warren Akin, of Bar-Eighth District-Tinsley W. Rucker, of Clarke. Ninth District—Clements, of Gwinnett. Tenth District—James Whitehead, Warren. Eleventh District—Thomas W. Lamb, of Glynn.

The convention then adjourned, on motion. until 3:30 o'clock.

After the Recess. The delegates are a hasty dinner, that is those who did eat. The members of the committee on credentals were engaged in hearing contesting delegations and did not even get a sandwich.

Back through the rain the delegates trudged from the hotel. The spectators filled the galleries before the hour of reassembling came. Chairman Barrow's right arm was some-promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

As the convention came to order Chairman Tiny Rucker, of the credentials committee, got the eye of the chairman and asked for twenty minutes more time to finish hearing the contests from Fulton and Clay counties. The time was granted.

Seab Wright, of Rome, was the next to get the attention of Chairman Barrow. When Mr. Wright briefly addressed the chair and the convention in the morning he was away back in the hall. This time he was nearer the chair and as his voice rang out clearly, everybody turned toward him and listened attentively. "I desire to inquire when the committee on platform will report. Mr. Hoke Smith told me that the committee will probably not be able to report before tomorrow morning. There are a great many people who want some things in that platform and they want them very much." Mr. Wright added that many of the delegates couldn't remain another day and were anxious to get the platform up before right.

in that platform and they want some things in that platform and they want them very much." Mr. Wright added that many of the delegates couldn't remain another day and were anxious to get the platform up before night.

"The committee on platform has not been appointed," the chair stated.

Two minutes passed and the clerk read the following as the committee:
First congressional district, S. R. Harris, of Wayne; second, W. C. Gunn, of Randolph; third, J. B. Forrester, of Lee; fourth, Louis Garrard, of Muscogee; fifth, Hoke Smith, of Fulton; sixth, R. W. Patterson, of Bibb; seventh, J. W. Maddox, of Floyd; eighth, Hal Lewis, of Greene; ninth, Mr. Pike, of Jackson; tenth. W. H. Fleming, of Richmond; eleventh, B. P. Jones, of Lowndes.

A delegation from the first announced that Mr. Harris, of Wayne, is a resident of the eleventh district and not of the first. In consequence, the first district was left without a representative. The chair wanted to put a Bryan county man on the committee to represent the first district, but after repeated requests for a delegate from Bryan to come forward and no one appearing, some delegate from Bulloch was requested to come to the front. Eventually, Mr. Branham, of Bulloch, was substituted for Harris, of Wayne.

Hoke Smith moved that further debate be limited to five minutes for each speaker and this was carried.

The committee on resolutions and platform prepared to retire and a dozen delegates whose pockets were loaded with platforms started to draw their manuscript.

Drafts of Platforms.

Captain Fred Foster of Morgan county.

Drafts of Platforms.

Drafts of Platforms.

Captain Fred Foster of Morgan county, handed up the following and had them read:

Resolved 1. That the banking laws be so changed and amended as to permit the issue of currency based on state bonds of approved value, on the same terms as such issues are now allowed and guaranteed by the general government on United States bonds.

Resolved 2. That it is the true policy of the democratic party so soon as said party shall get control of the national government to have removed by competent national legislation the restriction now existing which prohibits the national banks from taking real estate as security for loans.

Resolved 3. That state and national banks as to taxation be put upon the same footing under the laws.

These resolutions were referred to the committee on platform.

Colonel Garrard, of Muscogee, handed up a longer set of resolutions endorsing the free coinage of silver, opposing the concentration of federal power, declaring that a surplus in the treasury is a glittering temptation for thieves and plunderers, opposing government control of the telegraph and telephone, demanding economy in the administration of the government, tariff reform, the abolition of the tax on state banks and the inauguration of a state banking system, demanding an income tax, the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, declaring against dealings in futures in agricultural products and agricultural implements, an increase in the volume of currency to at least $50 per capita, endorsing Georgia's railroad commission laws, declaring against the alien ownership of land and the force bill.

When the free coinage resolution was read, the convention yelled its approval and went wild. And there was a similar scene when the banking resolution was read.

Later, these resolutions of Colonel Gar-rard's were substantially adopted as the platform.
Colonel Garrard's resolutions went immediately to the committee on platform.

For Free Silver.

Hon. M. P. Carroll gained the floor and sent to the clerk's desk the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the democratic party of Georgia favors the free and unlimited coinage of silver mined in the United States.

Resolved 2. That the delegates elected to the national convention be instructed not to vote for any delegate not favoring the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

These resolutions were received with thunderous applause, which asted for some moments. They were referred to the committee on resolutions.

The Clay County Contest.

Hon. Tinsley W. Rucker, of Clarke, chairman of the committee on credentials, came in with his committee from a side room, where, for two long hours, it had been in session, and announced ready to report.

been in session, and announced ready to report.

There was a breathless expectancy, and the vast audience waited in silence for the committee's report.

The famous and jolly "Tiny" Rucker stood on the floor in front of the speaker's stand—his modesty forbade him mounting the rostrum—and made his report.

"We have made no written report," said he, "and I am instructed to report verbally the proceedings of the committee. We have taken up the contest from Clay county, and, after investigating the facts in the case, have decided to let each delegation cast one vote with the convention; in other words, to divide the vote of the county between the two delegations."

This was received with applause.

The chairman then put the report of the committee before the convention, and is was adopted.

Here Came the Rub.

The interest of the delegates and spectators was centered in the contest between the two delegations from Fulton. The gallery was packed with people interested in the announcement of the result.

"In the contest from Fulton county," Mr. Rucker went on, after the Clay county contest was out of the way, "our committee has decided that the tweleve delegates elected by the mass meeting of May 14th elected by the mass meeting of May 14th are entitled to seats in this convention."

This little speech of the immortal "Tinny" was received with applause by the Cleveland contingent in the convention. There were long cries of dissent from the anti-Cleveland delegates and from the gal-

Hon. W. E. Simmons, of Gwinnett, obtained the floor, and read the following as a substitute for the report of the committee on credentials.

"That the compromise delegation from Fulton county be seated."

"Is the gentleman a member of this committee?" inquired Chairman Barrow in austers tones.

austere tones.

"I am a member of this convention, sir," fired back Mr. Simmons in reply with lightning-like quickness.

Great applause greeted this quick rejoins der of Mr. Simmons.

"He has the right to offer a substitute," said Mn. Rucker, the chairman. "If he did not have this convention would be bound by the action of the committee."

The chairman entertained the substitute, although he stated that he held doubts as to the right of the gentleman to offer such a substitute.

although he stated that he held doubts as to the right of the gentleman to offer such a substitute.

Mr. Simmons, of Gwinnett, asked that the call of counties be had on his substitute, "The voice of the democracy of Georgia," said he, "has been stified by men who are not members of this convention in a viva voce vote. We are acting more as a mob than as a democratic convention. The voice of the delegates has been stified and the only way to get at the sense or wishes of of the convention is to call the counties. "I am here as an advocate of no particular aspirant for the presidency, I am here as a democrat, as a reform democrat, as a democrat, as a reform democrat, as a democrat opposed to making one issue in this campaign."

Mr. J. S. James, of Douglas, made the point of order that Mr. Simmons had passed the five minute speech limit. "Go on! Go on!" yelled a thousand voices.

Big Tom Lyon, of Bartow, arose in his place just to the left of the main aisle, looking as fierce as a lion, indeed. He advanced down the aisle toward the speaker's stand, speaking as he came. Tremendous applause greeted the brave fellow as he held up his colors so valiantly.

"I raise the point of order, sir," he shouted, "that this question cannot be settled until a roster of delegates be made. It is unheard of, sir, I say it is unheard of, Mr. Chairman, to proceed without knowing who is and who is not a member of this convention. I challenge you, sir, to name an instance where such a thing was ever done."

The ferce eloquence of the Bartow delegate caught the crowd like wild fire, and it stood up while hats were waved and yells rent the air.

Mr. Racker Explains.

The delegates were dissatisfied at the meager report made by the committee on credentials of the facts in the Fulton coun-from delegates to know the true facts.

Mr. Rucker, chairman of the committee, was called for and he mounted the stand and gave the facts as he understood them.

Hon. Seab Wright, of Rome, asked Mr.

Hon. Seab Wright, of Rome, asked Mr. Rucker a question.

"How was the vote for delegates taken in that mass meeting?" he queried.

Mr. Rucker thought that the Cleveland men had gathered on one side of the hall and the anti-Cleveland men on the other.

"Wasn't there a call for a division," Mr. Wright continued, "and wasn't it refused by the chairman?"

Mr. Rucker couldn't tell.

"Yes! Yes!" the crowds in the gallery, cried.

At the close of Mr. Rucker's remarks the vote was taken, the delegates voting as their counties were called.

How the Vote Went.

Amid a great uproar, Colonel Pat Walsh stepped out in the middle aisle and addressed the chair. He rose to a point of order, he said. He inquired if the presidents of the Hill and Cleveland clubs arranged the compromise ticket under the consent of their respective organizations.

"Then I rise to a question of personal privilege," exclaimed Colonel Walsh.
Chairman Barrow stated that he had no information about the compromise.
"On with the ballot," was the cry.
As the voting proceeded the convention grew more and more animated. Chairman Barrow's gaval played a tattoo, but it was of little avail.

grew more and more animated. Chairman Barrow's gaval played a tattoo, but it was of little avail.

The eastern and southeastern counties voted almost solidly against the seating of the compromise ticket. But, as the middle and northern counties were reached, the compromise ticket gained in favor. Captain Newman, of Chattahoochee, created a laugh by remarking that his county hardly knew how to vote intelligently on the question. Though disfigured, he was still in the ring, and would vote "yes"—in favor of the compromise.

When Jefferson and Greene, and the counties along there, were reached, the vote grew close. With Marion's vote, there was only a difference of ten between the compromise and the straightout Cleveland delegation, the vote being 94 for seating the former, and 104 against it. Dick Gubb voted McIntosh for the compromise. Meriwether gave a vote and a half for it. Milton added two. Mitchell, Monroe, Montgomery and Morgan went against the compromise and the wo. Mitchell, Monroe, Montgomery and Morgan went against the compromise two and Newton's two went for it. Colonel Livingston cast Newton's vote. Oconee, Oglethorpe and Paulding were against it. Pickens was for it, but Pierce and Pike were not. Polk and Pulaski were. Putnam went against it. Rabun was not represented. Richmond cast all but a small fraction for the compromise. Rockdale, Schley and Screven and Sunter swelled the vote for the compromise delegation had 134 and the straightout 145.

Wilkes gave her two for the compromise, making it 155, and, after Worth had been called, Taliaferra changed her two votes in favor of the compromise, which made the total 157 for it and 171 against it.

The substitute was declared lost and a vote was taken on adopting the committee's report, seating the straightout Cleveland delegation from Fulton. This was carried and the delegation was seated.

Nominating Delegates.

"The conventionwill proceed to nominate delegates for the state at large," the chairman announced.

"The conventiuonwill proceed to nominate delegates for the state at large," the chairman announced.

This was one moment the spectators and the convention, too, had been waiting anxiously for. A hundred voices floated down from the galleries. A hundred delegates were standing in the aisles. Chairman Barrow rapped and pounded for quiet.

R. W. Patterson, of Bibb, had been on his feet before the chairman concluded his announcement of the order of business. Mr. Patterson stood over on the extreme right of the hall. He was extremely hoarse, but under the circumstances spoke fluently and in a graceful speech nominated F. H. Richardson, of Fulton, a gentleman who writes with a diamond-pointed pen, he said.

"Time" was called on Mr. Patterson while he was still speaking and he sat down amid flattering applause.

Colonel George A. Mercer, of Chatham, was the next to get recognition from the chairman. He nominated Hon. Fleming G. du Bignon, of Chatham. He paid Mr. du Bignon magnificent compliments and stated that the ex-senator was as sound as any man on tariff reform Colonel Mercer told of Senator du Bignon having stood by Henry Watterson in the St. Louis convention of 1888 and helped to put the tariff reform plank in the platform of that convention. No one can question his record on the tariff. He admires Grover Cleveland, but will not go to the convention fettered by instructions. Mr. du Bignon's name was received with loud cheering.

The Big Farmer.

Mr. George C. Thomas, of Clarke, was recognized by the chair.

"Mr. Chairman, said he, I arise to place in nomination for the high position of delegate at large from Georgia, the biggest hearted men in the world, and one of the truest democrats in the state. I have reference to Hon. James M. Smith, who lives in the historic county of Oglethore."

The Name of Pat Walsh.

Hon. Boykin Wright, chairman of the Richmond delegation, next addressed the chair. He was given a hearty round of applause as his eagle eye surveyed the sea of faces around him.

Loud and long-continued cheering swept through the hall at the mention of Mr. Walsh's name.

"I nominate Hon. Patrick Walsh, of Richmond."

Captain Howell Nominated.

That genuine, home-made genius and smile-maker, Hon. Emmett Womack, of Newton, next arose.
His face was all abeam with jolly smiles, and the convention liked the happy, smiling speaker's demeanor so well that it burst into a spontaneous round of applause.
Mr. Womack spoke in his inimitable and original way.

"I desire to place in nomination," said he,

"I have reference to that old battle scarred and victorious gladiator, famous in the south and in the nation, a man who is inferior to none in his sound democratic principles. I refer to Hon. Evan P. How-ell, of the county of Fulton."

Mr. Howell's name was received by re-newed bursts of cheering, and fresh cyclones of appliage.

Mr. Guerry Nominated. Mr. Guerry Nominated.

Hon. Fred C. Foster, of Morgan, sat just in front of the clerk's desk, and, as Mr. Womack sat down, Mr Foster caught the chairman's eye, and was given the floor. "I rise," he began, "to place in nomination one of the privates in the line—a young democrat. He requires no eulogian to voice his praises in this presence. From him I first heard the doctrines of tariff reform preached, and under his zealous teaching I learned to love those doctrines.

Mr. Russell said: "I desire to place in nomination a name not unfamiliar throughout the state of Georgia, and wherever it is known it has made its owner friends. We are on the verge of a great political revolution, and we should move cautiously. The man whose name I present is a zealous advocate of tariff reform.

Mr. Dupree's name was the signal for wild applause.

These Are Seconds.

Hon. W. R. Rankin, of Gordon, seconded the nomination of Hon. F. H. Richardson.

Hon. T. E. Massengale, of Warren, seconded Mr. Dupree's nomination in a neat speech.

Mr. Hoke Smith seconded the nomination of Richardson, duBignon, Guerry and Smith. Then there were loud cries of "vote!"

There was great confusion at this junc-tion, and delegates from all parts of the hall arose to inquire how the vote would be

Mr. Hoke Smith mounted the stand, and proceeded to announce how the vote would be taken.

"The chair will make that announcement sir," said Chairman Barrow, interrupting Mr. Smith. Chairman Barrow then named the nomi-

The nominees were: James M. Smith, of Oglethorpe; Fleming G. duBignon, of Chatham; DuPont Gaerry, of Bibb; F. H. Richardson, of Fulton; Evan P. Howell, of Fulton; Patrick Walsh, of Richmond, and ardson, of Fulton; Evan P. Howell, of Eulton; Patrick Walsh, of Richmond, and James Duprec, of Macon. The first four had been nominated by the Cleveland element and the ast three, with Colonel Smith, were the nominees of the anti-Cleveland element.

Now came the tug of war. This was looked upon as the contest between the Cleveland and anti-Cleveland strength. But it soon appeared that Senator duBignon as well as Colonel Jim Smith was getting the votes of the anti-Cleveland men. As a result, they took the lead and kept it to the finish.

From the first county called, which was Appling, to the last, it was an exciting scene. There was scarcely a full minute of quiet during the intire call of the roll. Delegates crowded into the middle aisle and neither the pounding of the gavel nor the pleading entreaties of the chair could get them to sit down. All around the desks of the chairman and clerks, the delegates stood up and followed the vote closely. One side would hurrah and the next moment the other crowd would be shouting. Handker-chiefs were waving and enthusiastic delegates shook their umbrellas and yelled vociferously.

At this juncture Chairman Boykin Wright, of the Richmond delegation, rose and stated that in the interest of peace and harmony and to show that there was no hostile feeling he would move that the four gentlemen who had received the highest vote be nominated by acclamation

This set the convention wild.

A hundred kodaks could not picture the scene nor dozens of photographs record the demonstrative cries. A wave of enthusiastic applause rolled over the convention and then back again. Chairman Barrow put the motion and it was carried with a prolonged shout as from one throat. Cleveland and anti-Cleveland joined in it. Those who were against sending instructed delegates felt that they had a big share in electing half of the delegates at large and they cheered with all their might.

Messrs. Smith, duBignon, Richardson and Guerry were declared elected.

When the roll call had stopped the vote was, Smith 276, duBignon 240, Richardson 184, Guerry 169, Howell 147, Walsh 128 and Dupree 143.

Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts of Lemon and Orange are made from the fruit and have their grateful, agreeable taste, without the turpentine odor which is observed in those extracts usually sold, made from poisonous oils, acids, and taste sharpened by cayenne pepper. Those who wish choice, pure extracts, should try Dr. Price's. They are all that is represented-pure, strong and of fine flavor-and stand alone in the market in these important respects. Be willing to pay a fair price for a pure article.

He also introduced the following resolution, which took the same course:

Be it resolved, That delegates to Chicago be instructed to vote as a unit.

As in the regular order of business, a recess of fifteen minutes was taken to aflow the congressional districts to select their delegates.

The delegates, gathered in eleven groups in different parts of the hall and proceeded to settle the muddy waters. They gathered closely together, and in several of the caucuses there were warm discussions.

While these caucuses were going on, darkness grew apace, and the janitor lit the gas.

At the expiration of the fifteen minutes, all the caucuses had ended but that of the fifth district, and for about two minutes after Chairman Barrow called the convention together again both he and Chairman Joe Jones, of the fifth district caucus, held forth.

The First District Elects. It was half-past 6 o'clock when Chairman Barrow called the convention to order at the end of the short recess.

He announced that the reports of the districts of the names of delegates to Chicago would be received.

There was a murmur of excitement in the hall.

What would be done? Would the Cleveland man attempt to scratch the names.

What would be done? Would the Cleveland men attempt to scratch the names of Hill men where they were presented by the districts, as delegates to Chicago?

It had been whispered around that this would be done, and a hot fight was expected. It was growing late, and the delegates were growing impatient, as well as hungry.

The first district was called for, and Hon. Mr. McGee, of Tattnall, arose to report the action of the caucus.

He reported the following names for delegates, stating that they were both distinguished citizens of Georgia, and pronounced Cleveland men:
George A. Mercer. of Chaham.

The names had hardly been read before Hon. Seaborn Wright, an ardent anti-Cleveland man, arose and moved that they be elected by acclamation.
This was done amidst applause. Things began to assume a much tamer aspect than before. The lookers on began to think that there would be no fight.

The Warring Second.

The leather lungs of Hon. Bill Harris, of Worth, announced from the clerk's desk that a report from the second district that a report from the second district caucus was in order.

Hon. Richard Hobbs, of Dougherty county, arose, very near the banner of the second district, holding a silp of paper in his hand. He announced the following

It was W. O. Ingram, of the third district. He unfolded the paper in his hand and read out the following names as the choice of the caucus for delegates:

Bascom Myrick, of Sumter.

He moved their election by acclamation.
"Mr. Chairman!" cried Mr. Forrester, of Lee, making his way down the main aisle,
"Mr. Chairman!"
He edged himself to the front, and being recognized by the chair, said:
"I have here a minority report from the third district, which I desire to have read."
There were looks of surprise all over the hall as that third district document was passed up to the clerk's desk. Those looks of surprise widened into expressions of astonishment as Mr. Henry Cabaniss read the paper.
The minority report named Hon, B. L.
Ross and Hon. W. M. Hawkes, of Sumter,
as delegates to Chicago.
Appended to these names was a statement in writing giving the reasons of the signers for submitting a minority report. One of the reasons was that three counties were

The minority report was signed by the delegates from Crawford, Houston, Twiggs and Stewart.

Hon. Seab Wright moved that the delegates from the third district be allowed to retire and select their delegates.

A number of gentlemen addressed the chair. Mr. Wright withdrew his motion.

It became apparent that the Cleveland men were going to vote for the minority report. They becam to range themselves in port. They began to range themselves in line of battle in front of the speaker's stand. Now came on the biggest, bitterest, hottest fight of all the convention. An Indescribable Scene.

The greatest confusion reigned. Every delegate from the third district was on his feet, in chairs, on tables and everywhere. Not a word could be heard. An Indescribable Scene.

Not a word could be heard.

The speaker batted the marble with his gavel in vain. The disorder and bedlam continued to prevail.

A half dozen delegates clamored for recognition.

About half way up the main aisle stood
Hon. Seab Wright, of Rome, viewing it all. His Roman blood began boiling in his veins. His eyes sparkled with fire. He drew himself up to his full height, and the handsome, clean-shaven Roman, with his raven locks, presented a picture for the gods.

He sprang upon a desk and, in a voice clear as day, addressed the chair. He was given recognition.

The Cleveland men hissed him, and for a was given recognition.

The Cleveland men hissed him, and for a moment he could not be heard. But he did not flinch. From his elevated position he looked down upon them with his eagle eye and did not move. His superb bearing compelled attention. The hissing died out, and in a voice of marvelous eloquence the speaker began. He was fervid, impassioned and fiery. He was stirred to his deepest depth, and made by far the grandest effort of the day.

"Just one minute," said he, with uplifted hand. "We want to act fairly. The Cleveland men have got a majority in this convention. They hold the power. They can abuse it if they want to at the dietation of a few central politicians. (Deafening applause.) You are threatening the ruin and destruction of the democratic party. Be a man in this concern.

"Let these delegates as they are selected by their district remain and endorse them.

"To do otherwise would be to disregard our oldest customs.

"Now, do you propose to trample upon the time-honored customs of this state?

"I'm a democrat, and as God is my judge I expect to stand by it forever, but I don't want to be dictated to by the majority in any such manner as this. If a few men want to run this thing and set aside home rule, let them do it, and take on their shoulders the consequences?"

As the eloquent young man got down from his desk the scene was indescribable. He had captured that audience, and that convention by his fervid eloquence.

For three minutes the cheering wildly went on.

"Let's Quit."

"Let's Quit." When the cheering died out Hoke Smith began to speak. He began to pour hot shot into the majority report when his backers began to cry to him to stop. The crowd began to yell him down "Let's quit," said Tiny Rucker. "Do you think we had better?" asked Mr. Smith.

For several moments they were undecided what course to pursue. They decided to make the fight.

A division was called for.

Pat Walah, far up the sisle, chair and brought the yelling ellence. He asked for a call of the question.

Just to the left of the chairman sat Hon.
W. Y. Atkinson, of Coweta. No one paid any attention to him new, as he was not a delegate. But Mr. Atkinson had a proxy stowed away in his vest pocket.
He, too, mounted a desk after the fashion of the orators of that turbulent and poisy convention. only convention.

"Listen to me one moment," said Mr. Atkinson. "I have but one mission in this convention and that is to sue for peace. I want, when these delegates return home, that they do so as peaceably as they came. "For God Almighty's sake, boys, don't let's rub it in too hard. Let's stand by the hearty.

let's rub it in too hard. Let's stand by the party.

"There has not been a convention in Georgia since the war that has not given district delegations the right to select delegates. Trample upon that custom and you will bring upon Georgia woes worse than those of reconstruction days."

These sober words were wildly applauded and the most vigorous rapping of the chairman failed to restore order.

While the confusion still reigned Mr. Forrester, of Lee, who presented the minority report, came forward and withdrew it.

The Good Old Fourth.

The Good Old Fourth.

When this lively skirmish was over the fourth district was called.

Mr. Haines, of Meriwether, made the report, "Recognizing as we do," said he, "that "Recognizing as we do," said he, "that personalism has been injected into this convention the fourth district has selected one so-called Hill man and one so-called Cleveland man to represent her in the national convention. We have selected Hon. L. F. Garrard, of Columbus, and Hon. L. P. Mandeville, of Carroll. We have given them the right to name their own alternates and Mr. Garrard has selected Mr. S. H. Christopher, of Marion. Mr. Mandeville is not present and his alternate has not been selected."

These delegates were elected by acclamation.

Mr. Joe Jones, of Douglas, reported the names for the fifth. They were Hon. George Hillyer, of Fulton, and Hon. M. A. Candler, of DeKalb. He announced that the caucus had authorized them to select their own alternates.

The two went through by acclamation.

From the Sixth. Placidity was now restored to the once ruffled bosom of the convention, and Hon. G. W. Gustin, of Bibb, read off the delegates from the sixth and they went in by acclamation, like those that had preceded them.

Trox Bankston, terribly agitated, stood on top of a desk and said that Vandiver had been nominated under a misapprehension—thought he was a Cleveland man.

Mr. Hoke Smith assumed his war paint again. If an anti-Cleveland man had been elected under a misapprehension, he thought it fair to let the delegation try it over again.

Mr. Tom Lyon, of Bartow, said that one-third of the delegation had left the city. Besides, the action of the caucus had been

"What kind of democracy do you call that?" he cried. "What kind of fairness do you call that, to go back six hours after action is taken and, because a man is not for one man, try to scratch his name?"

General Young said that it would be impossible to hold another meeting.

The wildest disorder again reigned in the hall. Delegates left their seats, and everything was suspended for several minutes. Meantime Mr. Heke Smith became more and more agitated.

he kept crying, "we'll vote for him. Put Trox Bankston jumped up again and screamed himself hoarse trying to nominate J. P. Jackaway.

Colonel Garrard, the chairman, had been requested by his committee to read its report, and he proceeded.

It is as follows:

1. Resolved, That we, the democrats of Georgia, in convention assembled, renfilm our devotion to the time-honored principles of our history party. We believe that the powers delegated by the people should be strictly construed; that the autonomy of states and the rights of local self-government and home rule should be zealously guarded; that no money should be taken from the people under any pretext for other than public purposes; that the strictest economy should be exercised in all governmental expenditures, whether local, state or national; that legislation should be confined to the legitimate objects of the government; that public office is a solemn public trust.

3. We believe that the right of taxation was delegated to the government, both state and national, to be used only for absolute necessities, and any other use of this power is dishonest and tyrannical.

4. A surplus revenue in the treasury is a glittering prize to be sought after by political thleves and plunderers.

5. We are uncompromisingly opposed to the enlargement and concentration of federal powers; to the usurpation by the central government of the functions of state; to bounties and subsidies in every form; to every species of class legislation and government partnership with private enterprises; to the whole theory and practice of paternalism.

7. We consider the government control of postoffices as necessary and proper, because the seal of the letter, protects the private affairs of the citizen from governmental esplonage, but we protest except in the regulation of prices against extending this control over telegraphs and telephones, and placing in our midst a horde of office holders who will only be amenable to national laws and may at any time, by the will of the majority, or, as often happens in our federal affairs, by the will of a minority, be turned into spies

14. We demand retrenchment and reform in the expenditure of national revenues and especially a correction of the present pension system which rests like a mammoth war tax on our section of the union.

15. We therefore, in a spirit of mutual concession, offer this, our platform to the democracy of Gerogia, and pray that a divine providence may incline our hearts to wisdom, justice and moderation.

The free coinage plank again came in for hearty cheering.

Strauge to say not a word of debate followed. Hoke Smith and W. H. Fleming and two or three others on the left of the chairman whispered to one another and looked as if they were about to jump on the declaration of principles. But as plank after plank was read they said: "Let it go" or "That is all right."

They were expected to buck against the free coinage plank, which is so contrary to their candidate's position, but that body of men would swept away opposition to the free silver plank as a tornado whisks straw. Seab Wright did not say a word, and the platform was put through with a rush.

The Unit Rule Defeated.

It was now nearly 8 o'clock. There was but little more to do. Adjournment was close at hand. The Cleveland dcvotees were not quite through. So long as there was a convention to listen they had something to engage it.

Hoke Smith's resolution endorsing expresident Cleveland had not been reported on by the committee on resolutions, and nobody asked what had become of it. Mr. Smith, though, had a copy, of the equivalent of the original, and, mounting the clerk's desk, he read a resolution endorsing ex-President Cleveland's administration, and another instructing the delegation to Chicago to vote as a unit.

This made violent confusion.

Colonel Simmons, of Gwinnett, was on his feet in one part of the house, Seab Wright was up in the middle of the convention, Colonel Pat Walsh strode up the aisle, and fifty more men were shouting disapproval from every side. Colonel Simmons had fire and fight in both eyes. Colonel Walsh shaking his right fist defiantly, and speaking pacifically, called for the floor.

The chair put the two resolutions, and

The chair put the two resolutions, and The chair put the two declared them carried.

Colonel Simmons appealed from the decision of the chair. He had no objection to an endorsement of Grover Cleveland, but protested against the unit rule. ut protested against the unit rule. Colonel Pat Walsh got the floor and said

Colonel Pat Walsh got the floor and said that no man was a more earnest advocate of tariff reform than himself, though he had been accused of being opposed to it. He held the endorsement of ex-President Cleveland to be proper, but said he: "I would suggest that the latter part of that resolution is not judicious."

He demanded a division of the resolution. Then the first part was put and carried.

tion. Then the first part was put and carried.

Colonel Walsh continued speaking against the unit rule. Do not shackle the delegates in this way. He reminded the convention of the financial distress throughout the country. "As much as we have heard here about there being no third party in our state, we must recognize that there is one. In my district it causes alarm." He declared that the effect of the unit rule might be to imperil the democratic party in the old tenth district, and he moved to lay the unit resolution on the table.

The backers of the resolution began to journ. A can of the rob on the adoption of the unit rule was demanded.

The backers of the resolution began to weaken.

"I think we can settle this if the convention will allow us five minutes," Hoke Smith called out.

Bob Lewis insisted upon an adjournment sine die and he looked and spoke as though he were mad.

An uproar ensued.

W. Y. Atkinson, who had gone out earlier in the session and secured a proxy, leaped into the breach and suggested that the authors of the unit resolution be given the five minutes asked for.

Seab Wright smilled and shouted, "That is on the right lime." He was a pacificator, if peace could be secured that way. If not he was in for the war.

So intense and violent was the opposition to the unit rule that its backers did not take five minutes. They came to a decision in about thirty seconds.

Hoke Smith announced: "We have determined in view of the statements that 'his might impêril the party to withdraw it."

Then there was yelling, indeed. The delegates began leaving the hall.

The unit rule in connection with the endorsement of ex-President Cleveland, the Clevelandites thinking that they had a majoriy of the delegation to Chicago.

The rejection of the unit resolution was a complete knock out of the attempt to instruct for Cleveland and bind Georgia's delegates to him.

A motion was made to endorse direct trade, it was carried and the convention adjourned sine die.

CONVENTION GOSSIP

The handsome and distinguished Judge Hamilton McWhorter was one of the interested spectators, and one who was given hearty welcome on all sides.

Carter Tate was on hand, looking after his congressional fences, which his friends consider in excellent shape. Everybody he met was for him.

Colonel Jim Benson, of Wilkes, didn't have much to say "out loud," but those who were near him got the benefit of some of his clever stories.

Senator Buck Candler was one of Union's delegates, and had a seat near the presiding officer. "Buck" found as many friends in Atlanta as ever.

Tay Rucker and his committee were dead wrong on their Fulton county report.

But Tiny's personally "all right" vite everybody, no matter what his political faith is.

One of the handsomest men in the convention was Colonel Jackson, the big allianceman of Decatur county.

Hon, Sim Whatley, of Coweta, was delegate. "Sim" has announced for decition to the legislature, and will probably have no trouble. He was an excellent representative, and is a good man.

Hon, Joe Terrell, of Meriwether, was one of the most popular fellows about the capitol. He received the most substantial kind of encouragement from everybody be met, and the chances of its being Attorney General Terrell seem very good.

The speech of Hon. Martin V. Cain, for financial relief, called forth the load applause of the speeches.

Major Bob Guinn, of the state school commissioner's office, had a seat amost the newspaper boys.

Handsome Billy Felton, of Macon, was one of the many candidates for solicing general who happened to be on hand. Billy will, in all probability, have no exposition for re-election.

Ex-Representative Jim Pittman, Troup, was renewing acquaintances about the hotels and in convention hall.

The "old war horse" was there from Chatham. He took no part in the finy, but most of the time was one of the statesmen who made headquarters in the clerk's room.

THOMAS DIXON

Comes Back at Dr. Hawthorne in a Lively Manner.

HE IS OFFENDED WITH THE DOCTOR,

And Gives Expression to His Views Con-cerning the Recent Atlanta Incident.

Thomas Dixon, Jr., rends The Constitu-

That is how he came to see a reference to himself made by Rev. J. B. Hawthorne. His answer, which follows, adds another chapter to a discussion which, it is to be hoped, will soon be brought to a close. The letter reads:

hoped, will soon be brought to a close.

The letter reads:

Editor Constitution—In your issue of Saturday your reporter declares that Dr. Hawthorne drew himself up "seven and a half feet high," and "wearing the same calm smile of other days," solemnly declared: "I will not reply. I do not stoop to the level of a blackguard."

This is about as I expected. When a preacher is caught in the act of circulating and affirming a maliclous lie about his brother, and plainly told of it, what else could he say? I commend your worldly wisdom, doctor, while I commiserate your lack of Christian manhood.

Just one word, doctor, in answer to your choice additional epithet, "blackguard," and I, too, am done with you. Not once in this affair have I been the aggressor.

I have each time simply tried to defend myself among strangers from slanders for which you and a few others were responsible.

As I passed through Atlanta May 3d, I was asked to give out the facts in this case so damaging to you. I declined, saying I came south for fun, not for fight, on this trip. But on returning to Atlanta Monday, the 8th, to fill my lecture engagement, I found my friends from North Carolina, and, indeed, all over the south, indignant at the brutal assaults you and others, they declared, were making behind my back in the convention. My friends, in opposition to my desires, insisted that in justice to my character and their love and friendship I should at least state the facts in the case. This I did as kindly as I could to you, on the night of the lecture.

Now, what did you do? After stooping ecture. Now, what did you do? After stooping to the ineffable meanness of attempting to have cancelled my engagement to lecture in the city on Monday night, you arose in the convention and disclaimed personal responsiconvention and disclaimed personal responsibility for hostile action toward me. After this, in an interview published at the same time in The Constitution, you launched at me a tirade of personal abuse. You indulged in the choicest billingsgate, blackguardism and false-hood, as I have pointed out. And now, with a smile of assinine dignity, you bombastically decline to reply to my answer to your assault, in which I call a spade a spade. Truly you are a great man!

great man! I have been on the defensive from the bea great man!

I have been on the defensive from the beginning of this controversy—from the day I first put myself in Hawthorne's hands in my personal telegram down to this answer to his epithet, "blackguard."

I did not go south "in an aggressive attitude." I went south with a kodak and a baby. And they absorbed my time from Tuesday, May 3d, to Monday, the 9th, when, on reaching Atlanta, I crossed Dr. Hawthorne's trail of slime.

I simply went to Georgia to photograph the scenes of the happiest days of my younger manhood, where I met, wooed and won my fair Georgia bride—fairer and dearer to me today than when I saw her face lit with love's first answer. I have a right to go to Georgia. The most priceless treasure of my heart she gave me. The sweetest dreams of my life are redolent with the perfume of her flowers and echo with the music of her rivers. Georgia blood flows in the veins of my children. My first born opened his eyes to the light of earth by a Georgia fireside. And if I ever ask permission again to enter her borders of a superannuated sectional ass, may God forgive my folly!

I have no grudge against Atlanta to exploit in New York. Were I in search of a God forgive my folly!

I have no grudge against Atlanta to exploit in New York. Were I in search of a sensation, this affair would be, and is already, too big a joke to furnish even the mildest sensation of a day in this latitude.

With thanks to many kind friends in Atlanta and the south who have written to me, sincerely,

REV. TOM DIXON AGAIN. How a New York Editor Fixed One of His

Washington Correspondence Charlotte Observer
There can be no doubt that Rev. Tom Dixon, in whom all North Carolinians should feel a commendable interest, has been much sinned against in New York newspapers, and by correspondents who find it profitable to distort and pervert his seemingly sensational sermons, and I say this without meaning to reflect upon Mr. St. Clair, for whom I have the best wishes. While in New York, a short time after Mr. Dixon had become the pastor of the Twenty-third street church, I went down one Sunday to hear him preach. When he finished, I was prouder of him as a North Carolinian than I had ever been. That evening I went out to lunch with a friend of mine, who was magaging editor of one of the big New York dailes. During our conversation I mentioned Mr. Dixon's name, and spoke of the sermon I had heard in the forenoon and incidentally alluded to some unique views advanced by the preacher My friend was interested, especially in the sensational part.
Said he, "Make a story of it and hand it in at the office for tomprrow's paper." During the evening I wrote out a pretty full report of the sermon, taking pains not to give any undue sensational coloring to it, and accompanied it with a sketchy account of Mr.
Dixon's career.
Glancing over the paper next morning, any undue sensational coloring to it, and accompanied it with a sketchy account of Mr. Dixon's career.

Glancing over the paper next morning, what was my surprise to discover that in the place of my report was a highly sensational, and it is needless to add, a decidedly distorted and unfair account of Mr. Dixon's sermon. I carried it to my friend, the managing editor, in whose place a Sunday substitute had served the day before, and he smiled as he said: "Sensations, my boy, take precedence over sense in a New York newspaper office; facts give way to fancy every time, unless it is one of those cases where truth is stranger than fiction." So there it was; some reporter had heard the sermon, and, detecting sufficient sensational features about it to serve as a peg upon which to hang a garment "out of the whole cloth," he had drawn on his imagination, and turned out a report that made "mighty interesting reading," as Horace Greeley would say, and which the editor-in-charge preferred to the more just and less imaginative account.

ATTACKED BY A HEIFER.

ATTACKED BY A HEIFER.

Lives.

Hix, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—Mr. Isaac Strickland, of this county, had a very fine heifer to drop a calf last Friday. As he had to go off quite early Saturday morning, he asked two young ladies living on his place, Miss Lizzie Taylor and Miss Indiana Woods, to drive her up. The heifer ame ben very gently till they reached the cowpen gate, when she stopped, gave a loud bellow and made at Miss Woods, knocked her down and kept her so till Miss Taylor ran up to drive her off. She then turned on Miss Taylor, knocking her down and pawing a new cotton dress into ribbons. Two other ladies near by commenced screaming, which frightened the calf and it ran off, when the cow followed. Dr. Sewell examined the wounds. He said they were very badly bruised up but not seriously hurt. Miss Taylor had three ribs fractured and a severe bruise on the shoulder, while Miss Woods had no bones broken, but was badly cut about the head and face.

Nashville, Tenn., May 18.—About 10 o'clock last night a telegram was received in this city that a mob of sixty citizens had organized at Tullahoma, Tenn., seized an engine and was preparing to go to Manchester to take a negro from jail and lynch him. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the negro was discovered in a bedroom of the daughter of Colonel W. C. Baird, postoffice inspector. The young lady screamed and the negro field. It is supposed his intention was to commit criminal assault upon Miss Baird. The information is that the negro is doomed. The jail can be easily broken into, as it is only an ordinary wooden structure.

A Monster.

One of the largest packages of sherry wine that was ever brought to the south, was landed through the Atlanta custom house yesterday. It is a "double buit" of extra, pale, dry Manzanilia, coming direct from Cadiz, Spain, to the Messrs. Bluthenthal & Bickart, of this city. The capacity of the cask is over three hundred gallons, and its weight is about three thousand seven hundred pounds. It took as large double wagon to haul it from the car. The package is so enormous that it is quite an object of inferest to everybody, nothing like it having been seen heretofore.

The Messrs. B & B are very enterprising merchants, and, b; their thrift and energy, have achieved a brilliant success in the wine and spirit trade. The importing business is one of the most important branches of their line, and they have a great many foreign connections, and buy all their European wines, gins, brandles, etc., direct from the first hands. Messrs. B & B, have done a great deal to enhance the receipts of the Atlanta custom house, and to place this port in a good comparative position with the other southern ports of entry.

Just a few days since they received 75 cases of selected Rhine wine, from Germany. We are glad to see the enterprising spirit of these merchants, and it is to be hoped that other wide-awake dealers will grasp the same idea and further, not alone the interests of their business, but also that of the city of Atlanta.

A Card.

The political situation seems to be the principal theme of discussion and prominence. To the delegates to the convention we have a word to say. No matter what personal preferment you may have in the matter of choice for the standard bearer of the democratic hosts, these opinions must in the interests of the party give way to the demands of the majority. Again, there is another matter of equal importance that has no bearings on the issues of politics, but, nevertheless, concerns all.

all.

We have on our floors a magnificent assortment of all grades of furniture at marvelously low prices. In bedroom, parlor, diningroom and hall furniture we are prepared to cater to the tastes of all. We would be pleased to have visitors and delegates in the city call and see us. We take pleasure in showing you through.

FINE CIGARS.

Smokers, attention! Bear in mind that you have to pay for your cigars and are entitled to the best for the money. There is no earthly excuse for any one to buy and smoke "bad" cigars, when good ones can be bought at the same

Let those who want to know what they smoke call at Cuesta's Havana Cigar factory and see for themselves how painstaking leaf after leaf is handled in Cuban style and made into "La Corona" by skilled Cuban cigarmakers.

Remember, that the Havana tobacco that I use is of my own importation—the very best—and has been selected especially for this market by myself in the city of Havana. I cordially invite the public to call at my factory, corner Peachtree street and Edgewood avenue, and inspect my goods. A. L. CUESTA,

FOR SALE Monday, May

At 12 O'clock, on the Premises.

Between Pryor and Loyd Sts.

Here is a central lot, adjoining the one upon which will soon be erected a grand telephone exchange building that will be the pride of Atlanta. This part of our prosperous and growing city has been attracting capitalists for the past several years, yet but little of this kind of property is ever upon the market. Lots so very suitable for almost any kind of improvement, right at the depot, and Whitehall and Pryor streets, are very hard to buy.

Now Is Your Chance to buy where your money will forever enhance in value. The building up of the corner of Mitchell and Pryor streets this summer will enhance the real value of this lot at least 25 per cent. Good central real estate enhances annually in this city. No man ever makes a mistake in placing his money in real estate properly located in Atlanta, but the majority of those who buy get rich. Then attend this sale and back your own judgment. Examine the location, calculate its many values and you are bound to buy. Central real estate is never upon the market except from necessity, and you must buy when the opportunity is offered or not at all. Such property may not be upon the market again in ten years. Right now is the time to put your funds up and take this lot. Terms, one-third cash, balance on time.

at half-past 4 o'clock. This very desirable central lot is 60 by 140 feet, with a 7-room framed house upon if. "Tis one of the most prominent and valuable corners in this section of Atlanta, and right at the capitol of the state. It would be a spiendid location for a first-class family hotel, which is very much needed in this part of the city. In fact, stores or any other building would prove a paying investment on this spot. There is not a corner south of the Georgia railroad where so many people pass daily. You cannot make a mistake in putting your money in real estate so favorably located and so near the center. It enhances every 90 days, and its topography is such that the value is bound to greatly enhance. Just look how many streets bear upon this prominent corner. Where the masses pass daily property continues to grow in value and demand. Examine this lot and be at the sale. Titles all right. Terms, 1-3 cash, balance 6 and 12 months.

Where to Find The Constitution.

THIS PAPER CONTAINS 10 PAGES

ATLANTA, GA., May 19, 1892.

The Result in Georgia. The action of the Georgia democratic convention was a surprise to The Constitution.

We believed, and still believe, that the voice of the great mass of the democracy of this state is against the nomination of Mr. Cleveland, as being a dangerous and disastrous step for the democracy to take. By a close vote, however, a majority of the state convention has demonstrated itself to be to the contrary. We make no effort to account for the result, further than to say that the action of Connecticut and other states, considered as being certainly against Mr. Cleveland's nomination, shook the faith of enough of the Georgia delegates to carry the convention, against what a majority of its delegates believed, a week ago, to be a fatal step for the party.

Be this as it may, we accept the result with good grace. Our advice has been for the party's good alone, and, if Mr. Cleveland should be nominated, we earnestly hope that our protest against such a result will prove to have been unfounded. We are none the less importunate, however, for the party not to take the step against which we have so earnestly protested. We believe that the wise course is that which would unite both elements in New York on some candidate other than either Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Hill, and thus assure that state to the democracy. Without this, the loss of New York and the defeat of the party are inevitable.

State Banks. A dozen years ago, when The Constitution began to advocate the rehabilita tion of state banks of issue, as a simple and effectual remedy for the financial depression which has become chronic in the south since the war, it stood prac-tically alone. The subject was no sooner broached than the most active of our esteemed contemporaries let fly at us with loud cries of "wildcat" banks, and there was considererable of an uproar among those who are not in the habit of under standing matters for themselves.

But the whirligig of time has changed natters somewhat. The question of state banks has become one of reasonable and serious discussion. We hear less of the ignorant cry of "wildcat" banks; and there is a growing tendency to consider the question on its merits as at least is growing more and more intolerable at the south as the gold dollar increases in

Thus it is that after the lapse of a dozen years The Constitution finds itself in what the financiers call very good company. Some of the leading southern newspapers are advocating the revival of the state banking system; The New York Financial Chronicle devotes a long editorial to the question; and The New York Evening Post discusses it in a serious and not unfriendly fashion.

These are hopeful signs. They show beyond all question that public sentiment in the financial centers is adjusting itself to the demands which the agricultural regions are making in behalf of a system and a currency better fitted to the needs of the people. The Evening Post seems to be of the opinion that the movement in the south in favor of state banks of issue is an alternative to free coinage. But this is a mistake. The two supple ment each other. When the monomet allists declare that the free coinage of silver will flood the country, the reply is that the state banks will absorb it and hold it as a reserve fund, just as the more favored institutions at the north hold gold, bonds and treasury notes.

Yet The Evening Post may rest assured that a properly guarded system of state issue would kill the flat money heresy which the bull-headed and the narrow-minded policy of the mongrel interests of the north threatens to make popular. The people have an idea that ese moneyed interests of the north are in favor of nothing but the increase of the value of the gold dollar and the contraction of the paper currency. This idea is causing a deep-seated feeling of discon-tent, and it will develop a tendency to take matters in their own hands and engage in some reckless legislation. We have thought that the money-power would take warning when it is too late, but The Financial Chronicle and The Evening Post intimate that there is a cy to permit the people to indulge in state banks and thus secure a currency which cannot be diverted from its uses as a currency.

The Financial Chronicle seems to understand the matter better that The Evening Post. At least, it goes into the subject with more confidence and with nore of the air of an expert. The Post, however, touches the matter fairly and seriously, and that is a point gained. It says that all the apparatus exists for country by means of a bill of not more than five lines repealing the discrimin-ating tax on the circulation of state banks. This is true, in a measure, but it should be said in behalf of those who to make any experiment in the matter. They want a currency with the special and peculiar qualities which attached to the notes of the successful state banking systems before the war-a currency elastic and suited to meet the pressure contingencies; but they do not want the restoration of this system to start off without due preparation. The apparatus exists, but by the time the repeal goes into effect, the states should be prepared to put a well-guarded system in opera-

Under the state banking system in vogue in Georgia and South Carolina before the war there was never any lack of currency. When there was little demand for it, it went back to the banks for redemption instead of going to some money center for the purpose of stimulating speculation. When extra supplie were needed the banks stood ready to issue them, so that the volume of currency was always regulated by the laws of supply and demand. There was never too much and never too little. The state banking systems we have mentioned were strong enough to weather the worst panics the country has experienced. They were the safeguards and the mainstays of business interests of Georgia and Carolina.

We shall take occasion to refer to the article in The Financial Chronicle hereafter.

Work for the World's Fair.

It is evident that some of the counties in the state are not making a very vigorous canvass in the interest of a state exhibit at the world's fair. Some creditable work is being done in this direction, but time passes, and much will be left undone if there is not more activity.

In a number of counties, however, the people are working to swell the fund by holding fairs and giving entertainments-in fact, employing all the means in their power in the interest of the state exhibit. The example of these procressive counties should stimulate others where the world's fair question is not being agitated to any great extent. The Enquirer-Sun says the outlook is bright in Muscogee, and that that county will be in the front rank of Georgia towns in this movement. The schools are assisting in the work there as they are doing in other localities and every agency that can contribute to the growth of the fair fund is brought into service.

There should be a great rivalry between the counties for the world's fair banner, as far as Georgia is concerned. There is no time to lose. Georgia must make a creditable exhibit at the fair. There will be "millions in it" for the state and it would pay to spend millions, if it were possible, to place Georgia in the proper light before the world. The people must be up and doing if they expect their state to occupy a front seat in the great

Municipal Tax Rates. From time to time, when some public improvement is suggested in an American city its opponents raise the cry that they are paying the highest tax rate in the country, and cannot afford to have it increased. This was the talk in Memphis until recently, when The Appeal-Avalanche boldly declared that Memphis had a very low tax rate compared with that of many other cities, it being only $1.75. The New York Financial Chronicle comes to the relief of the Memphis paper, and gives the tax rate of the following fifty cities, for 1890 or later:

New York, $1.90; Chicago, $4.35; Philadelphia, $1.85; Brooklyn, $2.56; St. Louis, $1.50; Boston, $1.26; Baltimore, $1.55; San Francisco, $1.61; Cincinnati, $2.85; Cleveland, $2.83; Buffalo, $1.46; New Orleans, $2.02; Pittsburg, $1.50; Washington, $1.50; Detroit, $1.67; Milwankos, $2.25; Newark, $1.82; Min. $1.67; Milwaukee, $2.25; Newark, $1.82; Min-neapolis; $2.14; Jersey City, $2.64; Louisville, $1.98; Omaha, $3.80; Rochester, $1.59; St. Paul, $1.09; Kansas City, $1.25; Providence, a partial remedy for the situation which $1.50; Denver, $1.00; Indianapolis, $1.55; Alexandre $1.00; Denver, $1.00; Indianapolia, $1.50; Alleighery, $1.50; Albany, $1.90; Columbus, $2.40; Syracuse, $1.66; Worcester, $1.56; Toledo, $2.70; Richmond, $1.70; New Haven, $1.95; Paterson, $2.50; Lowell, $1.46; Nashville, $1.50; Scranton, $2.60; Fall River, $1.64; Cambridge, $1.56; Atlanta, $1.50; Dayton, $2.64; Chart, $1.50; Dayton, $2.64; Chart, $1.50; Dayton, $2.64; Chart, $1.50; Chart, $1.50; Dayton, $2.64; Chart, $1.50; Dayton, $2.64; Chart, $1.50; Dayton, $2.60; Stanton, $2.60; Stant $1.64; Cambridge, $1.56; Atlanta, $1.50; Day-ton, $2.24; /Troy, $1.36; Grand Rapids, $2.80; Reading, $1.45; Camden, $2.50; Trenton, $1.75; Wilmington, $1.40. The city with the highest tax rate, Chicago, is making the greatest progress, and the city with the lowest rate, Denver, is making the least progress, when every thing is duly considered.

Cities with an average rate, and Atlanta is one of them, are enjoying a steady growth, with no booming on the one hand nor depression on the other.

Perhaps these figures will suggest other matters connected with the status of these fifty cities. The experts may be able to see more than appears on the surface.

Draw the Line Somewhere. Three negroes were lynched, the other day, in Alabama, for an outrage upon a white woman.

Speaking of this affair, The Memphis Commercial says: There is small reason to hope for any change There is small reason to hope for any change for the better. The commission of this crime grows more frequent every year. The generation of negroes which have grown up since the war have lost in large measure the traditional and wholesome awe of the white race which kept the negroes in subjection even when their masters were in the army and their families left unprotected except by the slaves themselves. There is no longer a restraint upon the brute passions of the negro.

What is to be done? The crime of rape is always horrible; but to the southern man

What is to be done? The crime of rape is always horrible; but to the southern man there is nothing which so fills the soul with horror, loathing and fury as the outraging of a white woman by a negro. It is the race question in its ugliest, vilest, most dangerous aspect. The negro as a political factor can be controlled. But neither laws nor lynching can subject his lusts. Sooner or later it will force a crisis. We do not know in what form it will come, but it will come.

All white men feel that in such crimes the safety of society demands swift and the safety of society demands swift and horrible punishment in order to inspire a wholesome fear among the danger class of negroes. All white men take this view, whether they are native southerners or northern men who have made their homes among us. Outside opinion we can neither consider nor respect in a case of such supreme necessity.

But within the past few days three negroes have been lynched in Georgia for the murder of a white man. The provocation was great but we can afford to be more deliberate in punishing murder than in the other class of crimes.

We are all more or less willing to risk our lives, but the people of the south are not willing to risk the safety of their

One Secret of Success. A famous writer recently said to newspaper man:

To succeed in one or many things a man must concentrate his whole mind and body on the thing that is before him, and that is what I do, and the only way in which I am enabled to accomplish so much. A man can do anything he wants to if he has a good digestion, a clean conscience and a reasonable amount of clean conscience and a reasonable amount of ntelligence; but don't do anything you don't want to. I never did anything in my life that I did not want to. That's another great principle in my life. Always have your own way in that; do things you want to do and they will be well done.

Now, there is more hard common sense and philosophy in this than will appear to the casual reader. But it will be said that the environ ment determines the occupations of most men. They are so hampered that they cannot do what they would-like to do. And right here the successful man shows his power in so shaping circumstances that he will be in a position to have his way—to take advantage of opportunities. Even then, however, a man of ability very often fails because he will not or cannot concentrate. Some men are able to concentrate their attention upon many lines of effort; others can do only one thing well.

Any man of average intelligence and industry can by concentrated effort succeed in at least one direction. The trouble is that many persons scatter their energies, and grasping after numerous prizes miss them all.

Food Crops This Year.

It is now generally admitted that the great west will not produce very abundant food crops this year, and the chances are that, with the foreign demand, our home supply will command a high price. The southern farmers who have been prudent enough to follow good advice, diversifying their crops, and providing for the wants of man and beast will have good cause to rejoice. The all-cotton planters will find their policy an expensive one. They will probably sell their staple at low figures, and will then be at the disadvantage of buying their supplies in distant markets, at ruinously high prices.

We hope that comparatively few of our people will be so situated, but it is safe to say that our independent farmers this year will be those who have judiciously diversified their crops.

This prospect should be a warning every year. Under our old all-cotton system we are liable any time to find ourselves at the mercy of the food specula tors. Crop failures in the northwest or an unusual demand in Europe may rup food up to enormous figures. Our only safe plan is to raise our own supplies, and let cotton be our surplus crop.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The New York Tribune says: "A reception was held at the home of Colonel Richard Lathers, No. 248 Central Park West, yesterday afternoon that expressed in an appropriate and touching manner the kindly feeling existing between the north and south. Miss Mayr Crustis Lee a descendant of Martha. Mary Custis Lee, a descendant of Martha Washington, and a daughter of General Rob-ert E. Lee, arrived in this city last week from Bermuda, and as the widow of General Grant and her daughter-in-law were in town, Colonel Lathers took the opportunity of bringing these representative women of the north and the south together in an informal and quiet way. Mrs. Grant was unable to attend, but her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick D. Grant, was present and completed the graceful ceremony by greeting the daughter of the great soldier of the south in the name of the great soldier of the south in the name of the great soldier of the north. No amount of it would intoxicate him. Finally whisky did not satisfy him, and for years before his death he bought a solution of arsenic by the dozen bottles and drank the stuff in large quantities. He lived to a very old age and after death was buried on his farm. A few days ago his family concluded to remove the remains. On opening the grave it was found that the body had not deegyed a particle and had literally turned to stone.

GEORGIA POLITICS.

"It is a very clearly written document and gives vivid pictures of the conditions as they exist in Georgia at the present time. Its conciseness is remarkable and the whole is a very able analysis of political affairs as they relate to the several parties. Like all deep thinkers, Senator Brown is apprehensive of danger to democratic success on account of loss of strength drawn from it by third party-ism, and points out the importance of keeping the solid south unbroken. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Reply to Rev. Father Kelley's Card. Editor Constitution—I note with regret Rev. Father Kelley's article on "The Baptist Convention." It is to be deplored that a great body of good and holy men, or any one of such as composed the Baptist convention, should give offense to one of a great Christian denomination who, perchance, might differ with them as to the mode of working in "the Master's vineyard."

It is a fact beyond controversy that the Baptist church is a great power for good in this sinful world and that it stands high in the kingdom of our Christ.

The same is equally true of the Catholic church.

us can be written in two words: "Love one another." That he loved all men without regard to race, nationality, environment or sin, no Christian will dispute. He did not enunciate any doctrines, but simply said: "By their fruits ye shall know them; a good tree will not bring forth bad fruit, and a bad tree cannot bring forth good fruit."

His attention on one occasion being called to one who was casting out devils, and as His apostles thought, not in the proper way, He simply said: "Let him alone. He that is not against Me is for Me." On a certain evening, when our Master was footsore, worn and tired. He asked permission to stop in a Samaritan village and was refused. Two of his apostles were indignant and said: "Master, will Thou that we command fire to come down and destroy?" His loving reply was: "Ye know not what spirit ye are of."

Is it not time that Baptists, Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians and all should stir up their pure minds to the remembrance of the spirit they are of, and instead of making warfare on each other, make it on sin—not on sinners? God loves sinners and hates sin, and can't we make the distinction? Respectfully, THOMAS D. STEWART.

Dr. E. H. Barnett, the beloved pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will not leave Atlanta.

And everybody in Atlanta will be pleased when that is known.

For several days the doctor has had the call to the professorship in the Union Theological seminary under prayerful consideration, and all Atlanta has most anxiously awaited his decision, hoping that he could see his way to decline. Yesterday the doctor wrote a letter to the trustees declining the call. The letter was full of love for the school and devotion to the cause to which the doctor has given his life.

The doctor's declination will be most gratifying news indeed to his thousands of admirers throughout the city, but especially gratifying will it be to the members of his gratifying will it be to the members of his congregation, who know and love him so well. Sunday, after the congregation meeting, one of the members remarked:

Many silently echoed the sentiment, and to these his loss would have come as a nighty sorrow.

Few men in any church eminent a degree the qualities of minister, pastor, scholar and practical sense in all the relations of life. While distinctly a Presbyterian, Dr. Barnett recognizes and appreciates the Christian by whatever name called, and in return has the confidence and love of all.

The sale of the piece of property on the corner of Luckie, Broad and Peachtree streets yesterday by Mr. Sam Goode was a very attactory one. The bidding was lively from the start. The first bid made was by Mr. Harry Stockdell at $000 a front foot, but the piece grew rapidly till it was knocked down to Mr. Will lnman at $38,400, or $768 a front foot.

Mr. Frank D. The colored church at the corner of Mariham and Maple streets was destroyed by freezily yesterday morning. It was of Presorterian denomination. The fire had good headway when the alarm was turned in, and the firemen could do nothing to save it. The fire was thought to be of incendiary origin.

Mr. Charley Price, formerly the organist at St. Philip's church, has resigned that position to accept a similar place with the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Price, who is recommised as one of the state's finest organists and musical directors, fully deserves the promotion which has been accorded him. Mr. Price will take charge of his new positions June 1st.

the Senate.

Previous Occasions Upon Which Catholic Priests Have Figured in the House and the Senate.

Washington, May 18 .- (Special.)-The enti-Harrison senators have been very busy today telling about recent convereations had with Secretary Blaine.

It is said that within the last ten days no less than eight republican members have asked Mr. Blaine if he would decline, in case the Minneapolis convention minated him. That question has been out to him point blank. The report goes out that he has positively declined to say that he would refuse a whooping nomi nation. An account of an interview which Senator Cameron had with Mr. Blaine is given. The meeting took place last Saturday in front of Mr. Blaine's residence. Sald Cameron:

"Mr. Blaine, the republican convention at Minneapolis is going to nominate you. Of that there is no doubt. You will be chosen by acclamation, despite your re cent letter on the subject of the republican nomination. Now, what are you going to do about it?"

Mr. Blaine laughed, and, saluting Cam eron with an upward movement of his arm, went into his house.

The Question of His Health. Secretary Blaine's appearance at the funeral of Senator Barbour yesterday afternoon was the subject of universal comment. He came into the senate chamber leaning on the arm of Secretary Fos ter. He looked anything but a well man. His step was inelastic and there was a general sluggishness about his movements which indicated the low state of his

The pallor of his face was absolutely ghastly. His whole appearance presented marked contrast to his appearance at the circus a few days ago, when he ate peanuts and drank pink lemonade. Then, his face was flushed, his spirits seemed high, and the general appearance he made was that he was in excellent health. The marked difference between his appearance then and his appearance today indicates what a change a few days will produce and how his vitality ebbs and

At the circus last week he looked as if he could split rails. At the funeral he looked as if he was on the verge of total collapse. Yet, withal, Mr. Blaine looked infinitely better than he did in January on the occasion of Senator Plumb's funeral. During the progress of the impressive funeral ceremonies of the Catholic church Mr. Blaine appeared extreme ly restless. He shifted his position frequently, and his hands worked nervously and convulsively. He spoke to Secretary Foster once or twice in an undertone, and there seemed to be a sort of twitching of the muscles of his mouth. The one thing, however, which attracted general attention, and which gave the lie to his otherwise broken-down appearance was the undimmed luster of his eye. Blaine's eyes have always been the remarkable feature of his countenance. Yesterday they were as bright and piercing as stars. No one fail to contrast Mr. Blaine's appearance with that of the other presidential candidates in the chamber. Over on his left stood Senator Sherman-tall, erect, immovable. The thin senator, although eight years Blaine's senior, looked as tough as a hickory stick.

Mr. Sherman is one of the best pre served men in public life. There is not an ounce of superfluous flesh on his tall angular frame, and time does not seem to be able to bend, much less break him. Near Sherman stood Senator John M. Palmer. of Illinois, twelve years Mr. Blaine's senior, strong and rugged looking. The younger aspirants for the presidential nomination-Hill, Reed, Brice, Gorman and Allison-all looked strong and vigorous, and if any man had been called on to name the man in the chamber who looked worse from a physical standpoint, nine out of ten would have Many an admirer of the plumed knight looked down upon him and went away from the capitol sadly thinking that Mr. Blaine's days were numbered.

Looking Into Early History. Naturally, the services attracted the closest attention, and there were many looks from one to another in the crowded chamber as for the first time in the history of the building the incense attendant upon a Catholic ceremonial diffused itself throughout the chamber. The novelty of the day's history caused one of the offi-cers of the senate to look up the records in order to find out what part in the his-tory of the house and senate priests of the church of Rome have taken. One of his discoveries will be news to all but very few indeed. It is that there was once a Catholic priest in the membership of the house. He was Gabriel Richard, and was a delegate from Michigan when it was a territory. This was in 1823. When he was elected to the house, it was from the Detroit district, and he was in jall. He had been surd for defamation of character by one of his parishoners whom he had excommunicated for divorcing his wife. He was fined $1,000 as a result of the suit, and being unable to pay the money, was sentenced to imprisonment. Of course his election to congress released him from durance. He delivered several speeches while in the house. There has been one Catholic chaplain in the senate. He was the Reverend Constantine Pise, of Maryland. He was elected in 1839, upon the motion of Henry Clay. There has never been a Catholic chaplain of the house, though on several occasions, that body has been opened with prayer by priests The last prayer delivered in the supreme courtroom, when it was occupied by the senate, was by Father Rider, of Georgetown college. One of the priests who took part in the ceremonies in the senate was Father Gillespie, a relative of Secretary

Senator Faulkner Will Be Returned General satisfaction is being expressed in the senate at the fact that all opposition to Senator Faulkner's re-election has been withdrawn, and that the leading West Virginia newspapers are energetically engaged in saying nice things about the senator. Today information has been received from several portions of the state to the effect that the senator is being enthusiastically endorsed by the county conventions. Mr. Faulkner is very popular in the senate with the members of both Brice Will Be a Candidate. It seems to be settled that another United States senator is going to take a tentative boom to Chicago. He is Senator Brice of Ohio. One of Brice's lieutenants, Lewis Bernard, of Cincinnati, has been in the city for a day or two. He has been very quiet, but today admitted that Senator Brice had his eye upon the Ohio democratic delegation, and that the pipes were being laid to send a delegation to Chicago. Senator Brice has the backing of John R. McLean, and the anti-Cleveland wing of the party in the state.

Another of his lieutenants was in the city today. He is ex-Representative Lefevre. He was asked if the Ohio delegation was to be for Cleveland. He replied: "It is to be neither for Cleveland nor Cleveland's heir, ex-Governor Campbell. It is to be for Senator Brice."

The fact that the senator is himself a candidate for the democratic nomina tion has not until now been known, although there have been some hints that he might come forth in that attitude His entry into the field is due, doubtless to the fact that the feeling that Cleve land's nomination is an impossibility

The News in Washington. The Georgians here were disappointed at the action of the Georgia convention today, but they look upon the delegation as composed of strong and conservative democrats for the party above any man. When the delegates get to Chicago and learn that there are names of men before the convention who can be elected, and that there is at least doubt about the election of Mr. Cleveland, if nominated, the Georgians believe Georgia's delegation will go for the man the doubtful states call for. Gorman and Boles are both being frequency ment today.

To Be at the Head of a New Syndicate to Take Charge of the Bichmond Terminal.

Philadelphia, May 18.—An afternoon paper prints the following: The report that Drexel, Morgan & Co., are at the head of the new syndicate which will take charge of affairs of the Richmond Terminal Company is generally believed to be correct in financial circles, although at the offices of the firm, at New York, and at Drexel & Co's., in this city, it is said that nothing has been done. The affairs of the Richmond Terminal Company are attracting considerable attention in this city, owing to the fact that a large number of the securities of the company and of the affiliated companies are held by home capitalists. The new stockholders' committee, consisting of General Samuel Thomas, W. L. Strong and William F. Clyde, has charge of the plans for the preservation of the property and it is probable that a meeting of the members' committee and members of the syndicate headed by Draxel, Morgan & Co., will be held and that after the meeting an outline for a plan of the reorganization of the property will be given. It is generally believed that the plan contemplates an assessment of 10 per cent on the stockholders in return for the payment. An assessment is, it is believed, unayoldable and belief that it will be levied has had an unfavorable effect upon the price of Richmond Terminal stock in the market. Take Charge of the Richmond Terminal.

This is a suit for $2,000 damages, concerning which much litigation has been going on. The case was transferred to the United States court from the superior on petition of Messrs. Hot Griddle Cakes.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder possesses a peculiar merit not approached by that of any other baking powder. It produces the hot buckwheat, Indian or wheat cakes, hot biscuit, doughnuts, waffles or muffins. Any of these tasteful things may be eaten when hot with impunity by persons of the most delicate digestive organs. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder leavens without firmentation or decomposition. In its preparation none but the purest of cream of tartar, soda, etc. is used, and in such exact equivalents as to always guarantee a perfectly neutral result, thereby giving the natural and sweet flavor peculiar to buckwheat and other flour that may be used, the natural flavor so much desired and ap preciated by all. The oldest patrons of Dr. Prices powder tell the story, that they can never get the same results from any other leavening agent, that their griddle cakes, biscuits, etc. are never so light and never taste so sweet or so good as when raised with Dr. Prices Cream Baking Powder.

Columbia, S. C., May 18.-(Special.)-It was a glorious victory for Hill, a Waterloo for Cleveland. Since 12 o'clock this morning, Cleveland's name has been buffed about the convention hall—not forty delegates favoring Cleveland have materialized. The ulliance held another caucus this morning at 10 o'clock, and adjourned at 12 o'clock to give the hall up to the regular convention.

This brought on an excited colloquy between Talbert and Has-kell, and bloodshed was narrowly avoided. The Delegates Elected.

The delegates elected expressed their preferences to The Constitution's representative as follows:

Governor Tillman—I am opposed to Cleveland and favor Hill, if he can win.

Senator Irby—I am for Hill.

Dr. S'okes—If we go east I am for Hill.

Mr. Talbert—I am inclined to favor Boies.

Mr. Jervey—Inclined to Hill.

Mr. Youmans—I am for Hill.

J. G. Evans—I am against Cleveland; favor the man who can win; Hill is my first choice.

Mr. Tindol—I am for any good man who can win; if we go east I am for Hill.

Mr. Thomas—I am in favor of the man who can win. I am opposed to Cleveland, and like Hill.

Mr. Doar—I have no particular favorite; thybody against Cleveland. I like Hill.

Congressman Stackhouse, the remaining delegate, is in Washington. It is stated on reliable authority that he favors Hill.

The convention is still in session, and it is probable that an adjournment will not be reached before 4 o'clock tomorrow morning.

During the day dispatches were sent to several members of the convention by an Atlanta paper to the effect that Cleveland had carried Georgia. The Cleveland delegates used the dispatches for all they were worth, but it availed them nothing.

Against Cleveland. was absolutely whipped out today. The democratic convention was, as predicted, the greatest ever known in North Carolina. The best men in the party were here, determined and angry with the third party. From the time when State Chairman Smith called it to order until the last, there were calls for unity and harmony, and there was not a harsh word spoken.

Ex-Governor Jarvis, the permanent president, made a stirring appeal for unity. His allusion to Cleveland was greeted by applause lasting a minute. There was the same applause at the mention of Hill. Jarvis attacked the tariff with withering earnestness. He called on alliancemen. same applause at the mention of Hill. Jarvis attacked the tariff with withering earnestness. He called on alliancemen, third party and St. Louis platform men to lay aside their coats and join in the fight against the republican party, the common enemy. He begged his hearers to save the state from the party which ruined it in 1868. As he closed there was tremendous applause and cheering. The platform was adopted before the nominations were made. It is the one of 1890 with three planks from the Ocala platform. Free coinage, the abolition of the tariff, the abolition of national banks, the increase of the currency by issuing legal tender notes in lieu of the national bank notes, taxation of incomes and the repeal of the internal revenue system are the chief planks. It was adopted by acclamation.

There were five candidates for governor—T. M. Holt, G. W. Sanderson, Julian S. Carr, Elias Carr and S. B. Alexander.

On the sixth ballot Elias Carr was nominated for governor.

A gentleman from Indiana, who stands high in the democratic party of that state, said today that there was great apathy among the farmers and that he had been invited to a secret conference to try and prevent desertions to the people's par-ty, which is sure to be the result in the event of Cleveland's nomination! At the recent democratic primaries in Indiana the farmers took very little interest, allow-ing the Cleveland men in their cities to have things their own way. The same state of affairs exists in Ohio. The cities are for Cleveland and the country against him. The farmers will not vote for him if nominated. Immense meetings were held by both sides tonight, at their respective head quarters. At the Cleveland meeting addresses were made by Hon. John Goode, ex-Governor Fitz Lee. State Senator John L. Hon. Carter Tate, of Pickens, was prominent figure in the convention. His candidacy for congress is well known, and from what his friends in different parts of the ninth district say, he is practically assured of the democratic nomination.

Mr. T. M. Bell, of Gainesville, said: "I think it will be safe to say that Carter Tate will go into the convention with twelve to fifteen of the seventeen votes. His nomination is practically assured. He is the man to beat the nominee of the third party. He is well known and popular all through the district."

Mr. George Rucker, editor of The Alpharetta Free Press, remarked: "I think the race is between Tate and Pickett, and Tate will be elected by about seven thousand ma-

Mr. Joseph Underwood, of White county, said there was a strong third party sentiment there, but Tate is the favorite of the democrats of White.

Ex-Senator A. J. Julian, of Forsyth, said that Mr. Tate would be nominated and elected. Mr. W. W. Stark, of Jackson county, was of the same opinion.

STRUNG THE FIEND UP. A Black Brute Meets the Fate He Deserver in a Delaware Town.

wilmington, Del., May 18.—A Clayton, Del., special to The Every Evening says: James Taylor, the negro who assaulted Nelie Wilcox at Kennedyville, Md., was taken from Chestertown jail at 9:30 o'clock and lynched. From fifty to three hundred persons guarded the jail all day yesterday. Five hundred persons engaged in the lynching, some of them being connected with the best families of the town.

By 9 o'clock the jail was surrounded by from six to seven hundred men. Sheriff Plummer refused to comply with their required demand for the surrender of the prisoner, and finally they broke in the doors and overpowered the sheriff. Proceeding to Taylor's cell they secured him and dragged him out into the street. There he was given an opportunity to confess his guilt, but he refused to say anything. At 9:25 o'clock he was strung up and left hanging until 11:30 o'clock. Little Nellie Wilcox, the victim of the negro's brutality, died yesterday.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The stock market today was active and dull by turns, but animation when shown was still nothing more than the apparent result of operations by the bear party, their drives being attended by a marked increase in business in those stocks to which they paid attention, but cessation of their efforts was invariably followed by dullness and comparative stagnation in prices. The opening of the market was made at higher figures, but drives at Goulds and Grangers soon changed the temper of dealings, despite strength in Northern Pacific preferred and a few others. Prices were driven down all along the line, however, and this was succeeded by a rally in the afternoon, which was as usual accompanied by growing dullness in all portions of the lists after a drive at Burlington had depressed it over 1 per cent. The market for the rest of the day continued flat and almost featureless. The market showed some inclination to weaken again towards the close, which was, however, dull and firm generally at insignificant changes for the day. The strong point of the day was Susquehanna and Western preferred, which rose 21-4, but on the other hand North American lost 11-8 and Burlington and Hocking Valley each 1 per cent. Sales listed, 279,000 shares; unlisted, 11,000.

NEW YORK, May 18.—London was a buyer of about 5,000 Union Pacific and in all they bought about 10,000 sbares of stocks. The London buying led to some covering of shorts, and one block of 10,000 shares of Northern Pacific preferred was covered during the morning session. The bears were on hand all day looking for 'a weak spot. They sold down a few stocks, but did not make any great progress for the day. Atchison has been steady for about a week, but today it was heavy on the story of a new plan said to contemplate an issue of $100,000,000 second mortgage bonds, which shall bear a rate of interest graduated from 21-2 to 31-2 per cent. Eighty million dollars of these bonds are to be used to retire the increase and $20,000,000 are to be applied to betterments. If this plan goes through it will act as a fixed charge of about $3,000,000 annually. This, of course, does not amount to anything in a good year, but it was proved to be very unsatisfactory in times of railroad depression. The company shows that they will earn from 4 to 5 per cent on the income bonds, but we do not think more than 21-2 per cent will be paid. The Atchison system is a tremendous corporation and needs money for betterments all the time, and they want to use this device to raise additional funds. If this plan goes through, as it seems likely that it will, it will work to the detriment of the stock, and will put the market price still lower. Something is expected from the Richmond Terminal committee today. It is probable that an assessment of about 36 will be asked for. There is a great doubt if the stock can be assessed according to the laws of the state, but still it is the only way left open to them to help them out of their dilemma. The market developed renewed weakness in the last half hour. Northern Pacific especially could not hold its raily. The reports from the west about the floods and damage to crops are still believe that prices will be lower. Pacific preferred was covered during the

NEW YORK, May 18.—Our Liverpool cables, of which we had a number during the day, all read encouragingly. Better than this, however, were the official reports of the actual sales which for the first time in weeks have aggregated a considerable quantity. In addition Europe has steadily bought and been the main cause of the improvement. The purchases for this account have unquestionably been of a very fair aggregate, and our local traders have been the source of the principal supply. Their endeavors to buy back near the close caused the last spurt. The opening this morning was at an advance of 3 to 4 points, at which price trading was fair, but the fluctuations were almost nominal, 1 to 2 points covering the whole range of the business done until as remarked later this desire to cover forced the advance. We have had several messages today, as have others also, speaking of the threatening state of the waters south. There has already been a fair amount of land inundated, and the aspect is still unfavorable. The real damage may not be great, but the sentimental effect of this thing may be considerably more. With all this we lay more stress upon the Manchester reports than anything else, and if the present promise of good trade demand holds out we there it must tell upon the value of cotton. Otherwise than the foregoing there are no features in the situation which require any notice, and prices will be governed by the developments of the future. We have not changed our favorable opinion of the article.

CHICAGO, May 18 .- Today the corn pit attracted nearly all the attention of speculators both local and outside. The principal feature was the selling of May by a large holder, the principal part of which was bought by brokers, who have been in the habit of trading for ers, who have been in the habit of trading for Pardridge. The presumption that they concluded to swap horses or rather the party, who sold corn around 40 cents for May delivery seemed perfectly willing to buy it back at 54 1-2 cents, and the party who bought around 40 cents was willing that he should have it. The resuit will probably prove to be the end of the Mary deal, and cash oorn will settle down to its normal condition again. There is a very bearish feeling among a large number of speculators, some of whom are the most successful, and they are short large lines of July. It is a question whether the damage by the late rains has delayed planting long enough to prevent the growing of a fair crop. It would require but a very small reduction from last year to enable the farmers to realize in the neighborhood of 45 cents per bushel in Chicago for the balance of his last year's crop, and the question for the speculator to determine is whether or not the damage is sufficient for this purpose.

Wheat has struggled between lower cables and the depressed feeling on one side and the liberal clearances and backward condition in the northwest on the other. The forces have been about equal, thus keeping the market within a narrow range, closing about the same as yesterday. Outs were forces have been about equal, thus keeping the market within a narrow range, closing about the same as vesterday. Oats were strong, fully 1 cent higher for cash and sample lots. Allana will not have any more baseball after today for two weeks.

This is the last game and will be played for all it's worth.

A happy four-ply smile floated around to Markham rotunda last night.

And the gentle, genial Teddy Sullivan, one of Chattanooga's heaviest taxpayers, was right behind that smile.

It was the first smile with which Teddy been associated since he left Chattanoon last week and the chances are that it will dissolve today to return no more. It is customary to tell how a game of hil was lost and to show how it might have been won. That can be done very have been won. That can be done very quickly as far as the game yesterday goes. Memphis Drops Again.

Memphis Drops Again.

Memphis, Tenn., May 18.—Montgomery won the second game of the series with Memphis in a free and easy way by a score of 12 to 9.

Meaney let down in the fourth inning, Montromery making two two-baggers, scoring five runs. A three-base hit, a two-bagger and errors gave Memphis six runs in the third, while Meany's home run in the first scored two runs for her. Goldsby dropped a fly in the fifth inning and was sent to the bench, Meany returning to center, and Sherwood going to the box. King's work at short for the visitors was poor. Goldsby will probably be released. Clingman, of Cincinnati, joined Memphis and played a good game on third.

The score:

New Orleans, May 18.—(Special.)—New Orleans braced up and played invincible ball today, Webber pitching with good judgment, the nine fielding brilliantly behind him.

New Orleans bit the ball viclously, too, and while good fielding by Mobile kept the runs down, the locals won by a comfortable maderit, O'Connell's second-base play for Mobile and Bammert's work at third for the locals were the features, while Adams, the local center fielder, muffed his first fly ball, which was the only error New Orleans made.

Mrs . William King returned from Chicago last night where she has been spending a week attending the general federation of women's clubs which met there on the 11th. women's clubs which met there on the 11th. There were over five hundred delegates present, and the south was largely represented. Mrs. E: T. Byington, of Columbus; Miss Rosa Woodberry, of the Lucy Cobb institute, Athens, and Mrs. King were the representatives of the Woman's Press club, of Georgia, and were shown especial attention and courtesy. These laddes were invited to attend a large reception in Indianapolis, given in honor of Mrs. G. C. Crosby, Jennie June and Mrs. Jennie de la M. Lozier, president of Sorosis. Every state in the union, except Florida, had delegates. The convention was delightful and many entertaining and instructdelightful and many entertaining and instructive papers were read. In every way the southern delegation was shown marked courtesy.

comprises about sixty-five ladies and gentiemen.

The present stage rehearsals are being conducted at Phillips & Crew's music hall.

Three and four rehearsals are held each week, and the director, Professor Simpson, says that he is greatly pleased at the progress the club is making in its work. "The Chimes" will be given as a benefit to the Home for the Friendless, and will be produced at DeGive's opera house about the middle of June. A full rehearsal will be held tonight at Phillips & Crew's, and all the members are desired to be present.

An enthusiastic meeting of the ladies of the Home for the Friendless was held yesterday morning in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association. Miss Hume, of New Haven, Conn., was present, and addressed the meeting upon city missionary work. It is the intention of the ladies interested to add to their society city missionary work. A meeting will be held within the next few days to further consider the matter.

AN INVENTORY MADE BY MR. M'BEE

and Now the Central Railroad Authorities Want It.

Macon, Ga. May 18.—(Special.)—Again the Richmond and Danville has been or will be attached for contempt of court. This morning Messrs. Lawton and Cunningham in behalf of Mr. H. M. Comer chairman of the board of receivers of the Central railroad, filed a petition asking for a rule and the petition was granted. A hearing has been set for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The petition sets forth that en April 1st the receiver of the Central asked Mr. V. E. McBee to make an inventory of the effects of the Central railroad. At the same time Mr. McBee was directed to notify Mr. W. H. Green, the superintendent of the Richmond and Danville, that such an inventory was being made inventory when made was turned over by Mr. McBee to Mr. W. H. Green, and when the Central made application for it Mr. Green declined to turn it over. The petition claims that the inventory is the property of the Central and is therefore held by the Richmond and Danville illegally.

The court at once issued an order and Danville. rule against the Richmond and Danville, and United States Marshal W. P. Corbett left this afternoon for Atlanta accom panied by Messrs. Lawton and Cunning-ham. The hearing tomorrow will once more renew interest in the case.

A Petition to Set Aside. During the hearing of the application of the Central Trust Company of New York to be allowed to vote the majority stock, Judge Tompkins filed a petition to set aside the injunction and the hearing on that petition was set for today. This morning Messrs. Lawton and Cunningham put in an appearance but Judge Tompkins did not "show up." After some telegraphic correspondence on the subject the case was postponed.

Bibb County Will Gain Money. Bibb county will benefit not a little by the decision lately rendered to the effect the decision lately rendered to the effect that railroads must pay county taxes. To this county the Central railroad will pay for 1891 $1,785.91. The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, Brunswick division, will pay $1,358.37, and the Atlanta division, $653.26. The Macon and Elimingham will pay for 1890 $254.42. Birmingham will pay for 1890 $354.42 and for 1891 $861.56. The Macon and Northern will pay for 1891 $695. The Georgia Southern and Florida for 1890 $1,319.50 and for 1891 $1,239.53.

The School Appropriations. The county commissioners will meet tomorrow with the committee from the school board and will receive the application for the amount needed for the next year's school appropriation. The appropriation last year from the county was $42,500, but as that was insufficent, according to the board of education, it is probable that $45,000 will be the sum asked for this year.
Clerk Walter Smith is just now busily

name has been given.
Charged with Illicit Distilling.
John Curry, Thomas A. Davis and Kellar

John Curry, Thomas A. Davis and Kellar Davis, three farmers from Montgomery county, were brought in this morning and taken before Commissioner Irwin, charged with illicit distilling. Thomas Davis and John Curry were placed under two-hundred-dollar bonds and the case against Kellar Davis was dismissed. A Suit for Divorce.

In the superior court this morning a total divorce was granted to W. C. Fletcher against his wife, Susan Fletcher. The two had been married nearly twenty years and a pretty daughter of some eighteen summers was in attendance on the court. When the verdict was rendered the daughter walked over to her father and shook hands with him, bade him goodby, but went out of court with her mother.

A Coat of Steel Mail.

In Sheriff Westertt's office this morning

In Sheriff Westcott's office this morning The Constitution correspondent was shown a coat of steel mail, which has been made historical. After the murder of Captain Forsyth, at Normandale, about eighteen months ago, the citizens, headed by Ed McRae, gave chase, and it will be remembered that McRae was fired at by Andrew Renew, who was in turn shot down by McRae. The ball from Renew's Winchester struck McRae full in the breast, but was turned by this coat of mail. The place is now marked by a broken link in this valuable shirt.

The most wonderful revival meeting ever known in Rockmart has just closed at the Methodist church. It was during the session of the Rome district conference held at that of the Rome district conference held at that place.
The commencement exercises of Piedmont institute, Rockmart, will begin next Sunday, 22d. The sermon will be preached by General C. A. Evans.
The directors of the First National bank, of Cordele, on the 10th instant, declared a second semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent payable to the stockholders on demand, besides setting aside a good amount to the surplus fund. This bank was established only one year ago, and its great success and growing business are a deserved compliment to the financial ability of President George W. Marvine and Cashler Joseph E. Bivins.

Complete satisfaction is assured to invalid mothers if they will take Johann Hoff's Malt Extract. It is a bar to that debilitating languid feeling which seems to be the twin of motherhood. It takes away that thin faded look and builds up strength and life. Not only does the mother feel better, but the child will be benefited, as the milk organs are much strengthened by its use. Johann Hoff's Malt Extract compels the secretion of milk, so that even weak women can feel assured that the child will not lack proper food. In fact, the entire nutrition of the system is benefited. Look out for counterfeits. See that Johann Hoff's signature is on the neck of every bottle. Eisner & Mendelson Co., N. Y., Sole Agents.

The State Sunday School Association

MARIETTA IS FILLED WITH DELEGATES

Representing the Various Sunday Schools of the Country-The Proceedings of the First Day's Session.

Marietta, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The State Sunday School Association is here by a large majority and filled to the brim and running over with enthusiasm for the great work in which they are engaged.

Down the manufacture to the scaling of

Down the mountains to the seaboard they have come to put their heads together and consult as to how to best advance the Sunday school work of Georgia and save the children to Christianity and Christ.

Marietta has donned her holiday apparel to meet these messengers of "mercy, peace and love," and bid them a cordial welcome to the city and to the homes and hearts of its people, and an air of pleased expectancy is upon their faces as they watch for the delegates assigned to them.

They Are Well Received.

The reception committee has established headquarters in the same block with the Kennesaw hotel, just opposite where the north-bound passenger coaches on the Western and Atlantic railroad come to a Western and Atlantic railroad come to a full stop, and from that point the delegates are easily directed to their respective homes.

The reception committee is: E. Fan, B. R. Legg, J. S. Stewart, Jr., P. R. Cortelyon, W. H. Trezvant, M. R. Lyon, W. S. N. Neal, M. M. Sessions, J. R. Green, W. L. Sessions, John T. Brantley and R. D. T. Lawrence.

Mr. William Reynolds, of Peoria, Ills superintendent of the organization of the international Sunday school committee, Called to Order.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the committee was called to order in the Presbyterian church. A full house greeted Rev. M. A. Mathews, who led in a short service of devotion, in which he was ably assisted by the fine singing under the leadership of Profes sor A. J. Showwalter.

The officers then took charge of the convention for the transaction of business.
Mr. J. W. Wheatley, of Americus, is the efficient president; Mr. Scott Warren, of Americus, Ga., is secretary, and Mr. A. B. Carrier, of Atlanta, is treasurer.

In the absence of Hon. A. S. Clay, who is in attendance upon court, Hon. M. M. Sessions delivered the address of welcome. To this the president responded in ele quent, heartfelt terms.

Mr. Reppard's Report. Mr. Reppard, of Savannah, chairman of Mr. Reppard, of Savannah, chairman of the state executive committee, also re-sponded in one of his most eloquent efforts. The convention then proceeded with the business before it, and the usual commit-tees were appointed. Reports were read by the president, chairman of the executive committee and secretary. They were all good and were adopted.

charman of the executive committee and secretary. They were all good and were adopted.

That of the president revealed the fact that more than one half of the children of Georgia are still out of the Sunday school, and that 83 per cent of the church membership comes from the Sunday school.

That of the chairman of the executive committee showed that the state was divided into thirty-one Sunday school districts, each composed of three or more counties, and took up each district seriatim to briefly show its condition. It begins by saying: "Speaking from a personal standpoint we do not think there ever has been a year in our lives far which we ought to be any more grateful to Him whom we love to worship and serve than the one just passing into memory," and it then summarizes the condition as follows:

As will be seen by a careful review of this report from the various districts in the state, you will find that we have succeeded by persistent efforts in at least hearing from every district in the state. At our last convention we had reports from only twenty-one districts. You will also see that we have held two district conventions and that there are fifty-three counties organized, a slight decrease from last year's report.

During the year we have made no special efforts toward securing statistical informa-

The Evening Session.

The afternoon was taken up in devotional exercises, led by Mr. John Wallace; by a call of districts for reports, and by a very interesting lecture on "Improved Modes of Teaching," by Mr. Reynolds, and by a humorous and very sensible lecture on "Corea," by a native Corean and naturalized American, Mr. Yun.

Tonight the Sunday schools of Marietta tendered a reception to the convention at the boarding house of Mrs. Dunwoody.

Yesterday morning everything appeared so usual. O'Neal and England were there with several others, and there appeared to be no hard feeling between them. They saughed and joked with the others.

Finally all went out. Not long afterwards England and S. H. Hickman walked in together. Hickman left and stood walked in together. Hickman left and stood outside ten or twelve paces from the door. He heard no words. The two shots came in quick succession and O'Neal walked out with the pistol in his hand.

J. E. New, who was standing just outside, asked him:

"What in the world is the matter?"

O'Neal made no answer and walked on up the track toward his home.

Other people soon arrived, and England was made as comfortable as possible. Dr. McFaul and Dr. Elkin were called, but could do nothing.

England was carried in a city ambulance to his boarding house at 569 Marietta street. At fifteen minutes to 12 o'clock he died.

O'Neal's Arrest.

O'Neal's Arrest. O'Neal walked on down the railroad track, and turning off went to Chastine's track, and turning off went to Chastine's wood yard.

He walked in and laying the pistol on a desk, said:
"Give that to Mr. Chastine. If the police want me tell them I am at home."
He then started on towards his home, but was stopped by Patrolmen McCoy and Wallace. He asked them to take him by his house at 332 Luckie street, and the officers assented.

his house at 332 Luckie street, and the officers assented.

They met his little daughter. He picked her up in his arms and kissed her affectionately. He embraced his wife, and told her he was going out on his run. He said nothing about the shooting.

The officers then carried him to the station house. On the way the prisoner talked in a rambling manner, bursting into teams repeatedly. He made frequent allusions to a cowardly cur taking advantage of his wife. At the station his conduct was the same and his actions all the afternoon were those of a man half mad. O'Neal's Statement,

Were a limit on a rearry wife. She's true to me, and the story runs thing in a disconnected manner.

When was so wrought up that he could make no continuous statement, and tears were always in his eyes.

A Constitution reporter found him sitting in his cell, his eyes fixed upon the floor. Queston after question failed to arouse him for many minutes.

Finally to the question, "Why did you shoot him?" he asked "Who?"

He again relapsed into lethargy, but after a few minutes arose from his chair and began talking in a disconnected manner.

"The cowardly cur," he said, "and I thought him my friend. Oh, God, my poor trazy wife. She's true to me, and the sweetest thing on earth."

He answered some questions, and his story runs thus:

Not long since, his little daughter inner.

He answered some questions, and his story runs thus:

Not long since, his little daughter innocently told him that she had seen England eatch hold of her mother and try to kiss her. Then her mother cried. Wrought up by this, O'Neal asked his wife about it. She told him that it was true, and had occurred more than once. The first time she had told him she would say nothing about it, if he would never do so again. He promised not to, but did not keep it. Several times afterwards he had kissed her by force.

O'Neal then ordered England to stay away.

O'Neal then ordered England to stay away.

"My wife made this confession," says he, "and the next day went crazy. He took advantage of her, and went back to the house a few days ago."

Yesterday morning he spoke to England, and the latter confessed that the charges were true. O'Neal then called him a cowardly cur, and said he was not fit to go with decent people.

England declared he would take no such language from any one, and picked up an Iron bolt. Then O'Neal shot him.

He is Almost Crazy.

He is Almost Crazy.

Nothing could be more affecting than O'Neal's statement, and the manner in which he made it.

Tears streamed down his face, and he panted when he spoke of England's conduct towards his wife.

She Says Nothing,

Mrs. O'Neal and her little daughter were found sitting on the front porch of their house.

She stated that she had nothing to say at all. She has a wild, peculiar look in her eyes. She is a rather good-looking woman of less than thirty years.

To direct questions, if her husband's story was true, she merely laughed. Finally, she said:

"I thought you understood me, I will ally, she said:

not talk."

"Have you been to see your husband?"

"No, I don't want to see him."

Other questions brought no response.
Suddenly she leaped to her feet, and ran into the house.

The little girl appears bright, and, to a question, said:

"Yes, I've seen Mr. England catch hold of mamma lots of times."

"What did she do?"

"She hit at him."

Who They Are.

Who They Are.

O'Neal is a brother of Mr. Will O'Neal an engineer on the Richmond and Danville road. His father is also a railroad man. England's people live near LaFayette, in Walker county. He was unmarried, and about twenty-two years of age. O'Neal is several years older.

England's people were notified, and will probably arrive today. He will be carried to LaFayette for burial. His associates give him the best of reputations, and all the railroad men who knew him seem to have been his friends. His habits were wonderfully good.

O'Neal, too, has an excellent reputation as an orderly, law-abiding man.

The Inquest.

An inquest was held yesterday afternoon.

An inquest was held yesterday afternoon. No evidence further than the above was brought out.

The jury made a verdict merely stating that the death was due to a pistol-shot wound inflicted by O'Neal.

For Coast Defenses. Washington, May 18.—In the senate the naval appropriation bill was taken up and an amendment reported by the senate committee on appropriations for the construction of one sea-going coast line battleship, one harbor defense double turret ship of the monitor type, four light draft gunboats and six torpedo boats, being under consideration. A NEW SCHEDULE Against Which Darien Is Making a Vigorous Kiek.

Darien, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The postmaster at this point has received a new mail schedule from Washington, which goes into effect on the 1st of July, the same time that the new contractor takes charge. The schedule was evidently arranged to suit the contractor, and not in the interest of our business community, or by the consent or request of the postmaster at Darien. The new schedule which goes into effect on the 1st of July is as follows: Leave Darien daily, except Sundays, at 4:30 a. m. and 11:30 a. m.; arrive at Sterling station at 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.; leave Sterling station at 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.; leave Sterling station at 6 a. m. and 1 p. m.; arrive in Darien at 10:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. The carrier is allowed four hours to make the trip from Sterling to Darien. The East Tennessee trains arrive at Sterling from Brunswick, going north, at 8:45 a. m. and 9:30 p. m.; going south, arrive at Sterling from Jesup at 5:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. The mail that leaves here in the morning at 11:30 does not leave Sterling until 9:30 p. m., if then, and the mail that arrives at Sterling from the Brunswick and Western road at 12 noon does not arrive in Darien until 5:30 p. m. This new schedule was made too far in advance, for the roads may change their schedules several times before the 1st of July. The citizens are satisfied that if this matter is put properly before the postofice officials at Washington they will knock out this schedule and allow the business men of Darien to make up one to suit themselves. Against Which Darien Is Making a Vigorous Kick.

The Paper Collapses.

Waynesboro, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The Farmers' Friend, edited and published by Mr. O. R. Lasseter as the third-party paper of Burke county, collapsed and busted here today. The owners of the paper's press and outfit are Messrs. Dodson & Co., of Atlanta, who sent here today and took possession of the same, and put it in the warehouse for shipment, when Mrs. R. L. Phelps had the entire outfit levied on for non-payment of rent due her for the use of the printing rooms. This will add much to quench the third-party spirit in Burke county, and, as Burke is said by many to be the hotbed of the people's party, there will be but little enthusiasm now among her advocates, and the democratic party will, in future, have but little trouble in managing old Burke's politics.

atmosphere, and "lows" by a moist air, clouds and rain.

The low pressure area, which has been advancing eastward for several days, increased in depth yesterday, and last evening was central near Chicago, with a pressure of 29.30 inches. The movement of this area resulted in moderate rains at scattered points in the central portion of the country.

At 8 p. m. last evening generally clear weather prevailed on the gulf coast and San Antonio reported a temperature of 84 degrees, while St. Paul reported 46 degrees. Fair and cooler weather is predicted for today.

The Attorneys for Porter Stocks Will Move for a New Trial.

A SHORT TALK WITH THE PRISONER.

He Denies Making the Statement That Holland Was Equally as Guilty as Himself in the Case.

The end of the Stocks case has not yet been reached.

A jury, it is true, has found him guilty of the crime of murder, but there is still left the right of appealing for a new trial. First, to the presiding judge of the trial court: and in the event he refuses, to the supreme court of the state of Georgia. The lawyers who engineered the defense will make an earnest effort and leave no stone unturned to save the neck of their

A motion for a new trial is now being carefully prepared by Stocks's lawyers, and they will make it formally before the court within the next few days.

Among the grounds on which the motion for a new trial will be urged, will be the crowded condition of the courtroom during the argument of Solicitor Hill, and the ef-fect of their demonstrations upon the jury. It will also be insisted that the court erred in allowing Cassin's statement to Mrs.

Echols to be treated as a dying declaration, and in excluding certain testimony that was legally admissible. Many other reasons will, no doubt, be assigned, as there were several issues between the attorneys during the trial of the case, and various exceptions taken to the rulings of the court. The motion will be argued in due season, and Porter Stocks may have another chance to clear himself or to escape death by imprisonment in the Captain Stocks Not Sick. It was rumcred on the streets yesterday that Captain Stocks, the father of the prisoner, was so unnerved by the verdict of the jury that he went to his home exhausted and immediately took to his bed. An investigation of the rumor, however, proved that it was altogether unauthorized. Captain Stocks was found in his office by a Constitution reporter, at No. 84 Peters street, Intion reporter, at No. S4 Peters street, busily engaged at his desk, and with the exception of a careworn expression about his face, in apparently good health.

"Captain," said the reporter, "I suppose you were greatly surprised by the verdict of the jury yesterday?"

"I was, sir," came the reply. "I was not expecting such a verdict, for though I scarcely felt that Porter could be acquitted, I ventured to hope, with good reason, that the verdict would be voluntary manslaughter."

"Is it true, Captain Stocks," asked the reporter, "that your son said on leaving the courtroom: 'Ed Holland is just as guilty as I am; one is just as guilty as the other'?"

"No, sir, it is absolutely false. I was with Porter from the time he left his chair until he quitted the prisoner' room with the Forcer from the time he let it is chair until he quitted the prisoners' room with the bailiff, and such a remark never fell from his line. On the contrary, he has always insisted that Ed Holland was innocent, and if Porter is hung he will maintain it until his rock is broken?

The words were spoken with a bold and decided emphasis, and it was evident from his manner that he spoke from the depth of his sad heart.

At the Jail.

At the Jall.

At the jail vesterday afternoon Stocks was in his shirt sleeves, and appeared to be in excellent spirits, notwithstanding the cloud that hung over his life.

"The report is a lie," quickly responded Stocks when asked about his supposed statement concerning Holland. "I never opened my mouth in regard to Ed Holland, and I say now, as I have always said, that Ed Holland is perfectly innocent. He is as free from guilt as the angels in heaven."

Acted in Self-Defense.

"As for myself I only acted in self-defense and just as any other man would have done in my place. If I am hung, which I think will never happen, I shall insist upon the scaffold that I fired in order to save my own life. I notice it is stated that I was very indifferent when the verdict was rendered. I was not indifferent by any means, and if I appeared so it was only because I was conscious of my innocence, and felt that being acquitted of my own heart I would come out all right in the end." come out all right in the end."

About the Courthouse.

The civil branch of the superior court the only tribunal now in session. Jud Van Epps and Judge Westmoreland, of city courts, are both taking short vacation Judge Clark, after the Stocks case, a Judge Clark, after the Stocks case, a journed the criminal court for three week. The clerk of the superior court is still burecording the cases that were filed la Tuesday. The returns were much heavithan usual, and the clerk has had his hand.

The other departments were all quie and yesterday was a dull day about courthouse.

The Teachers of Greene.

Greenesboro, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—
The Teachers' Association of Greene county, held a most important and interesting meeting last Saturday at the Thomas Stocks Institute. Able papers upon pertinent and important subjects were prepared and presented by Professors J. L. Caldwell, V. T. Sanford, R. B. Smith, J. W. McWhorter Sanford, R. B. Smith, J. W. McWhorter and R. J. Strozer. An especially excellent paper was that by Mrs. V. T. Sanford, on "The Science and Practice of Teaching." A number of visitors were among the teachers and were highly pleased with the various discussions. The association has done much to arouse the educational interest of the county and each meeting is better than the one which preceded it.

They Can Well Be Spared. LaFayette, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—It is thought that the six negroes who raided the house of Mr. John Jones during his ab sence and made insulting proposals to his wife have been dealt with by Judge Lynch. A party of unknown men went to the ne-groes' camp and fired into them, since which time six out of nine of the negroes there have been missing.

The Electropoise and Its Wonderful Cura-

The Electropoise and Its Wonderful Curative Effects.

(Augusta Evening News, Jan. 20th, 1892.)

Some years ago The Evening News in discussing the use of electricity as a healing agent aliuded to the Electropoise, and so phenomenal and wonderful have been its cures, that the reputation of the little instrument is now echoing all over the country.

A well-known case in Augusta has been completely cured by the Electropoise, and the following interview from such a well-known, reliable and prominent man as President William C. Sibley, of the Sibley Mill, must deeply impress, if not entirely convince all who read it.

Mr. Sibley was perfectly willing to give his testimony to The Evening News about the Electropoise. He said he had been a great sufferer from the sciatica for five years before he began using the Electropoise. For two whole years he had not been free from pain, and at times the sciatic pains were so severe that he would jump out of the bed in his sleep and awake to find himself on the floor in great agony. He spent much money at the north for special medical treatment, and was 67 times cauterized with a white-hot from on different parts of his body. The treatment was almost as terrible as the sciatica itself.

"How long ago has that been, Mr. Sibley?"

"A year ago. And you know yourself my condition before that time. I could not walk to my office, or even across the street. I was helpless, and had to go in my buggy everywhere.

Mr. Sibley's statements are remarkable, but helpiess, and had to go in in body very where."

Mr. Sibley's statements are remarkable, but there is no doubt of their correctness, and the cures made by the Electrouoise are endorsed by all physicians who examine them.

THE PENFIELD ALLIANCE. They Issue a Warning to Their Erring

They Issue a Warning to Their Erring Brethren of the Order.

Greenesboro, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—One of the best suballiances in the state is that located at Penfield Among its members are prominent and successful farmers, men who live at home and who believe in making their farms self-sustaining. As a general thing there is prosperity in that section and the alliancemen are not running off after the ignis fatuus of a third party. Hesolutions were recently adopted by that alliance and they contain matter which is deserving of the calm consideration of those alliancemen who have been led to believe the order nothing more than a political aggregation, showing the folly of pursuing strange gods.

Going to the Convention.

Marietta, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The delegates to the state Sunday school convention that begins here in the morning have commenced arriving and the city has an air of pleased expectancy as the various ones to whom delegates were assigned watch their coming, Everything now points to a large and successful convention, filled to overflowing with genuine enthusiasm.
